DeGaulle Proposes Five-Year Plan for Algerian Problem

CONSTANTINE, Algeria (AP) — Premier de Gaulle announced today a five-year program for resolving the stubborn Algerian nationalist rebellion. The program calls for more and better jobs and housing for the local population, land distribution and better educational opportunities.

He told a cheering European and Moslem throng that last Sunday's constitutional referendum "engages Algeria and France forever."

He thus dashed hopes of Algerian rebels for independence.

"There are only two routes open today — war or fraternity," he said. "Algeria, like everywhere in France, has for its part chosen fraternity."

Sunday's vote was also taken as an expression of confidence in De Gaulle to settle France's outstanding problems, and the Algerian rebellion is the greatest of these.

De Gaulle's program to settle the nearly four-year-old rebellion includes distribution of 625,000 acres of farm land to Moslem farmers, at east 10 per cent of public jobs to go to Moslems, housing for a million persons and greater educational opportunities for Moslems.

De Gaulle told a cheering throng of Frenchmen and North Africans at Orleansville Thursday that the overwhelming approval of a new French Fifth Republic in Sunday's constitutional referendum "proved that Algeria wants to remain with France."

The man who probably will become the first president of the Fifth Republic pledged an improvement in Algerian living conditions.

Integration 'Never' To Get Governor's OK

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus today defied the U.S. Supreme Court and declared that "I will never open the public schools as integrated institutions."

He indicated, as well, that he has considered what the federal government might do if he reopened the high schools, still refusing entrance to Negroes.

"The only recourse the federal government would have would be to send in marshals and the Army to forcibly eject teachers and students," Faubus said.

The governor made the comment after releasing a statement at a news conference.

He opened by reading a prepared statement which contained the sentence, "The only question is whether the facilities can be used by the corporation, or not used at all."

Reporters asked him to clarify this and Faubus, speaking with emphasis, said he would never open the public schools on an integrated basis.

Faubus said in his written statement he would assist private organizations—both white and Negro—to set up and operate private, segregated schools.

The Little Rock Private School Corp. is working to collect money, and find buildings and equipment, to establish private high schools for white children.

"I will support and assist the corporation," Faubus said.

Dr. T. J. Raney, president of the corporation, says his plan does not embrace a private school for Negro children.

"The matter of providing educational facilities for the Negro students has been mentioned," Faubus said. "I will assist the corporation or any other in providing education for Negroes as well as whites. However, the corporation will require Negro teachers, facilities and funds for this purpose. It may be that the help of the NAACP (National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People) will be needed, as well as some of the funds being received by Daisy Bates and the money being spent for attorneys' fees."

Mrs. L. C. (Daisy) Bates is president of the Arkansas chapter of the NAACP.

Commenting on next Monday's hearing in St. Louis by the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals on the Little Rock case, Faubus said: "It appears that the only question to be passed upon is whether or not the court will allow the private school corporation to exercise its legally acquired right to use the leased school properties."

Federal judges Monday issued a temporary order restraining anyone from leasing the Little Rock schools. The 8th Circuit Court has been asked to make this an injunction.

Couldn't School Cafe Use Them?

SANTA FE, N.J. (AP) — An express company truck pulled up to Santa Fe High School with a crate loaded with 650 live, croaking, kicking frogs.

"No! No!" said Principal Tom Walsh. "That wasn't what I ordered."

He sent the live frogs right back where they came from—North Carolina.

Green-Eyed Night Club Gal Is Named Police Chief in Illinois City Fuss

AURORA, Ill. (AP) — Irate but ignored in his bingo war with Aurora police, Mayor Paul Egan has uncorked a real eyestopper in his bid for obedience and headlines—a lady police chief.

He announced that Lura Patricia (Patti) Counts, a red-haired night club press agent, is the new chief of police.

The 28-year-old green-eyed lass from Chicago has never dealt with the criminal element, but she says she's studied sociology. And she looked very well in a cheesecake pose for photographers.

"Press agentry," cried the opposition in this northern Illinois town of 55,000.

"It's just too ridiculous to comment upon," declared Donald Curran, whom Egan fired as police chief for not cracking down on bingo. Only he didn't go. And the City Council said he didn't have to.

Neither did the Police Department go when Egan suspended the entire 68-man force for listening to Curran.

But as far as the fiery little mayor is concerned Miss Counts is the chief.

"Her success at Aurora will accrue to the benefit of the entire world," he proclaimed.

And said she: "I will fight those who oppose my appointment."

When somebody asked if she's tried to supplant Curran yet, she replied, "I've never met the man, but he's too much of a gentleman to throw me in jail."

Miss Counts will do her fighting without a gun, she says. She added that she's against capital punishment and will bank her success heavily on the sociology and economic courses she said she learned at Radford Teacher College in Radford, W.Va.

Miss Counts hasn't even been sworn in yet. Egan says he's waiting until the bonding company says she's good for $5,000 coverage.

Like the 10 police chiefs Egan has fired and hired during his hectic 4½ years as mayor, Miss Counts will have to know who's in charge.

In his official message to her Egan said: "I want the department renovated, improved and streamlined. But before you make any major decision I want to be consulted."

He told her she was to listen to no phony commissioner-mayors or anybody else.

Miss Counts is supposed to do this for the next 60-days. It's a temporary job, Egan said.

The tall (5 foot 8) Miss Counts says she's not worried about the possibility she may not get her paycheck.

"That'll be all right," she said. "I make twice as much as the chief's salary by free-lance writing." The chief gets $7,092 a year.

Truman Raps Union Shop Ban Idea

CLEVELAND (AP)—Harry S. Truman today attacked proposals to "ban the union shop" as an "insidious attempt to shackle the rights of labor" and urged defeat of such proposals in six states where they come before the voters this year.

He said the proposals result from provisions of the Taft-Hartley law, which he referred to as "a concealed time bomb ticking away under the house of labor."

One provision of the Taft-Hartley law is that the union shop would not be permitted in states where state statutes prohibit it, the former president said in a speech at the quadrennial convention of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Bell Phone Hearing Due To Start Oct. 21

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The public hearing on the 28-million dollar Ohio Bell Telephone rate hike request will start at 2 p.m Tuesday, Oct. 21, the Utilities Commission decided today.

The commission set aside all of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of that week for continuation of the hearing. About a dozen cities are fighting the rate hike request.

The cities have agreed Ohio Bell is entitled to higher rates, but insist those requested are excessive.

Advertising Firm Finds 'Ad' Is Costly

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a cinch for burglars to get $2,300 from an advertising company's safe Thursday night.

The combination, neatly typed on a sheet of paper, was taped to the door of the safe.

The company, like many others, did this so its safe would not be ruined if burglars dropped in, police said.

General Motors, Union OK Pact; Plants Shut Down

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors and the United Auto Workers reached agreement on a three-year master contract Thursday night, but GM's vast industrial empire remained shut down today by a strike of its 250,000 UAW members.

UAW President Walter P. Reutheir hailed the new national agreement as "good for the nation, good for the UAW and good for GM," but he cautioned that GM workers at 126 plants across the country were authorized to remain on strike to back up local demands.

A companywide walkout against GM preceded the new pact by 12 hours. Before that, there had been a rash of wildcat strikes. The old contract ran out four months ago and tensions had mounted in recent weeks under no-contract operations.

A major complaint at local levels has been so-called wage inequities in GM plants—different pay for similarly classified jobs. The national agreement establishes a fund into which the company will pay half a cent hourly for each worker to narrow differences.

GM had insisted right up to the time of the strike that it would not give the UAW any concessions above those on which the union agreed with Ford and Chrysler.

But in the settlement, Reuther obtained these additional gains:

1.—An end to the 7½ hour work day for some GM employes. Reuther said both Ford and Chrysler had abolished the short work day in the past two years.

2—Five-cent an hour premium pay for workers scheduled for other than normal Monday-Friday weeks in operations requiring seven-day a week operation, such as boiler firing. The work previously had been done at straight time pay.

3—A GM agreement to study what the UAW had called wage inquities, under which GM plants in the same geographical area paid different wage scales for the same type of work.

GM's average hourly wage is the highest in the industry—$2.62 as compared with $2.52 at Ford and $2.33 at Chrysler.

Most of Ohio's 55,233 General Motors workers remained off the job today despite agreement in Detroit Thursday night on a new contract between GM and the United Auto Workers Union.

Local issues were keeping the picket lines up at most of the state's 22 General Motors plants. The union struck GM across the nation, idling a quarter of a million workers, when a 10 a.m. Thursday strike deadline passed without a settlement. The negotiators, however, reached agreement on a new pact 12 hours later.

But in Ohio, the strike was still in effect. At the Ternstedt plant at Columbus which employs 4,000 workers. A union spokesman said the company and union had reached agreement on almost all major local issues "but there is still some odds and ends to clean up." Another bargaining session was scheduled for this morning.

Workers also remained off the job at three Cincinnati area plants. Edward D. Hellkamp, union negotiator for the Cincinnati Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants, said, "The men won't go back until we get some relief on local problems." Adrian Jones, president of UAW Local 233 at the Hamilton Fisher Body plant took the same position.

Pentagon Cuts Its List of Secret Items

It ordered declassification of almost all military documents stamped top secret, secret and confidential before Jan. 1, 1946. Some date back to World War I days or before. Many millions of outdated documents are affected.

The declassification order was signed by Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy last Saturday, it was learned, and is due for formal announcement today.

The order also takes a preliminary jab at the continuing accumulation of classified papers. It orders the automatic downgrading, after a period of years, of documents labeled top secret.

Left for future action is a time-phased schedule that will remove all grades of secrecy from documents after they have been stored for a given number of years.

Specifically exempted from the mass declassification order are papers detailing U.S. and Allied war plans and almost everything connected with intelligence and counterintelligence.

Personnel and medical records also were excluded because their confidential nature is covered by numerous regulations, laws and customs that normally prevent the invasion of personal privacy.

Ah, There's A Woman Who Knows Happiness

LONDON (AP) — What makes a woman happy?

"Giving and receiving," said ballerina Beryl Grey.

3 Phone Firms Get Rate Hikes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Utilities Commission today approved rate increases for three small telephone campanies in Huron, Van Wert and Putnam counties.

It approved a $3,842.64 annual rate hike for Olena Telephone Co. in Huron County, a $2,274 annual increase for Middle Point Telephone Co. in Van Wert County, and a $2,106 annual boost for Glandorf Telephone Co. in Putnam County.

The commission said the Olena firm has been operating at a loss.

Integration 'Never' To Get Governor's OK

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus today defied the U.S. Supreme Court and declared that "I will never open the public schools as integrated institutions."

Reporters asked him to clarify this and Faubus, speaking with emphasis, said he would never open the public schools on an integrated basis.

Faubus said in his written statement he would assist private organizations—both white and Negro—to set up and operate private, segregated schools.

The Little Rock Private School Corp. is working to collect money, and find buildings and equipment, to establish private high schools for white children.

"I will support and assist the corporation," Faubus said.

Dr. T. J. Raney, president of the corporation, says his plan does not embrace a private school for Negro children.

"The matter of providing educational facilities for the Negro students has been mentioned," Faubus said. "I will assist the corporation or any other in providing education for Negroes as well as whites. However, the corporation will require Negro teachers, facilities and funds for this purpose. It may be that the help of the NAACP (National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People) will be needed, as well as some of the funds being received by Daisy Bates and the money being spent for attorneys' fees."

Mrs. L. C. (Daisy) Bates is president of the Arkansas chapter of the NAACP.

Commenting on next Monday's hearing in St. Louis by the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals on the Little Rock case, Faubus said: "It appears that the only question to be passed upon is whether or not the court will allow the private school corporation to exercise its legally acquired right to use the leased school properties."

Federal judges Monday issued a temporary order restraining anyone from leasing the Little Rock schools. The 8th Circuit Court has been asked to make this an injunction.

3 Phone Firms Get Rate Hikes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Utilities Commission today approved rate increases for three small telephone companies in Huron, Van Wert and Putnam counties.

It approved a $3,842.64 annual rate hike for Olena Telephone Co. in Huron County, a $2,274 annual increase for Middle Point Telephone Co. in Van Wert County, and a $2,106 annual boost for Glandorf Telephone Co. in Putnam County.

The commission said the Olena firm has been operating at a loss.

Three Sentenced In Common Pleas

Three persons indicted by the September term of the Pickaway County grand jury pleaded guilty in court this morning and were sentenced by Common Pleas Judge William Ammer.

Albert Louis Francis, 24, airman stationed at Lockbourne Air Force Base, was placed on 11-month probation for second degree manslaughter. Francis was the driver of the car that crashed south of the Lockbourne AFB several months ago, in which Charles A. Hayward, 22, another Lockbourne airman, was fatally injured.

Investigation by the county Sheriffs' Department revealed evidence that Francis was driving while under the influence of intoxicants.

Francis had previously pleaded guilty to an OMVI charge and received the usual sentence and fine. A condition of his probation was that he refrain from entering any establishment selling intoxicating liquors.

• • •

PAUL CONKLE, 30, Route 3, was placed on three years probation after pleading guilty to the indictment of unarmed robbery. He also pleaded guilty to OMVI and was sentenced to five days in the county jail, fined $150 and costs and lost his driving rights for one year.

Conkle was one of three men indicted for robbing Virgil Stires, a concessioneer with the Gooding Amusement Co. The act of strong-arm robbery was committed on the night of September 9, in which the three participants made off with $90, a pocket knife and a pocket watch.

James Roy Brown, indicted for grand larceny and pleading innocent at his arraignment Tuesday, had his bond reduced from $1,000 to $500. Brown stated he had obtained employment and could meet the $500 bond, but not the higher bond amount which had been increased at his arraignment.

Brown was indicted for the theft of a radio from an automobile impounded at the Sheriffs' Department lot on W. Main St. Brown's two accomplices also were indicted. They were William Heise and William Jackson, who pleaded innocent.

Charles W. Elder, 62, Kingston, pleaded guilty to an OMVI charge and was sentenced to five days in the County Jail, fined $150 and costs and lost his driver's license for one year. This was his second offense.

Commissioners Establish Fund

The Pickaway County Commissioners Wednesday established a new fund coming under the name repairs for the children's home.

Bills and claims against the county for a total of $10,708.98 were approved. Transfers were made to the unanticipated emergency fund from the following funds: public employes retirement fund, $1,086.38; memorial hall, $1,20; bureau of inspection, $1,000, and county commissioners' equipment, $1,500.

Transfers were made from the unanticipated emergency fund to the following funds: children's home permanent improvement, $440.78; memorial hall maintenance, $1,338.92; agriculture, $2,500, and maintenance of sheriff's automobiles, $200.

The following other transfers were made: from the children's home repair fund to the county commissioners' (new fund) for children's home repairs, $600; from courthouse and jail permanent improvement fund to county commissioners' (new fund), repairs for the children's home, $700.

Ban on Autos Beaten; Youth Gets a Horse

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP)— Like many another Princeton University undergraduate, Eric A. Grinnell found his social life in low gear because of the university's rule against cars.

So, he got a horse.

Grinnell, the great-grandson of a Springfield, Ohio, carriage builder, bought a buggy—a "Brewster brougham"—for $100. The green and black closed surrey was built in 1878, and originally sold for $2,000.

The 19-year-old coachmen's total investment, counting renovating charges and stable fees, will come to about $900. He plans to buy his own horse when he can afford it.

As for his use of the rig, Grinnell has more than collegiate horseplay in mind. He plans to earn hay money by carting couples around the campus and the town on party weekends at $3 for half an hour, and $5 a full hour.

The university, which has denied undergraduates the use of motor vehicles for three decades, gave Grinnell permission to drive the rig when he offered to use it for publicity purposes at football games.

"They were in a state of shock," he admits.

But later, he says, his mother fell in love with the thing because it's so beautiful, and his father thought it might be good experience.

Mile of Pennies Is Progressing Toward Goal

The Mile of Pennies for the Bandmothers' Assn. was off to a flying start Wednesday, the first day of the collection of pennies by school children.

Most of the children had their first foot of pennies collected before dinner that evening and had made their visits to relatives and neighbors to ask that each family save pennies for the next eight weeks, according to Bandmothers' officials.

More than 1,600 coinbooks, each made to hold 12 pennies, were distributed to children in the first six grades and to members of the junior and senior bands.

"If each child fills just one book each week, we shall have our mile of pennies very soon," was the comment of Mrs. Frank Marion, chairman of the collections' committee for the drive.

BANDMOTHERS are anticipating having 1,000 feet of pennies Monday when the first overall collection of coinbooks from the schools will be made.

Drive workers are asking every family to empty their pockets and purses of pennies each evening into a box or little jar to save them for a boy or girl who is trying to win one of the individual collection prizes.

The Bandmothers are not asking for nickels, dimes or quarters — just pennies. They hope that everyone who is proud of the Circleville High School band will remember for the next eight weeks, "Don't spend a red cent—save it for the Bandmothers".

Shower Mishap Fatal

Anti-NAACP Drive Planned

Segregationist Blames Group for Disorders

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett Thursday bared plans for an all-out campaign against operations of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People. He blamed the organization for the South's racial problems.

An NAACP official promptly charged the planned attack was a spectacular effort by Arkansas politicians to divert attention from their failure to solve the school integration dilemma here.

Bennett unveiled a six-point plan for hampering activities of the NAACP and said he had asked congressional delegations of 14 southern states to join in what he termed a "southern plan for peace."

Clarence A. Laws, Arkansas field secretary for the NAACP, said the Bennett plan undoubtedly would "shock decent, freedom-loving citizens everywhere."

Laws contended the state's political leaders want to throw up a political smokescreen to cover themselves "for having so miserably misinformed and misled the people of Arkansas in the school controversy."

Bennett's strategy calls for the withdrawal of federal tax deduction privileges for the NAACP, state pressure on the organization's attorneys, economic pressure and criminal prosecution of individuals allied with the NAACP cause.

Meanwhile, the head of a newly formed private school corporation expressed a hope the city's white high school students could begin studies next week.

Dr. T. J. Raney, head of the Little Rock Private School Corp. said Thursday a recent appeal for financial aid to the organization had brought a flood of donations.

OMVI Accusation Referred to Jury

Ernest E. Schwalbach, 34, Ashville, accused of driving under the influence of intoxicants, was bound to the Pickaway County Grand Jury today by his own request.

Bond was set at $200 in Circleville Municipal Court. He was arrested by the State Highway Patrol.

Nationalists Order Austere Life for Aides

TAIPEI (AP) — The Nationalist Cabinet has ordered all government officials to live an austere wartime life in view of the situation on the offshore islands.

These are some of the injunctions:

Don't gamble.
Don't give unnecessary parties.

Delma Mills Named PCTA President

Mrs. Robert Mills, 118 Dunmore Road, was last night elected as President of the Pickaway County Teachers Assn. at a teachers' picnic held in the Ashville School.

Assisting Mrs. Mills with this year's administration will be Miss Dehl Renick, Jackson Twp. elementary teacher, who was elected vice president and Donald Rose, principal of the South Bloomfield elementary school, elected secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Delma Jean Mills is a high school teacher at Pickaway Twp. school. The picnic meal was furnished free and prepared by the Ashville Parent Teachers Assn.

Carl Bennett, Walnut Twp. high school teacher, was picnic chairman and Everett Mehrley, Ashville-Harrison music teacher, was in charge of the program. A Walnut Twp. quartet rendered songs. It was composed of Bennett, Mrs. Annette D. Vandy, Miss Mary Jo Gaskella and Gene Houser.

AFTER GROUP singing, Jeffery Peters, Jackson Twp., sang a few solos. He was accompanied by Judy Hinton. George McDowell, county superintendent, introduced the superintendents, who in turn introduced teachers in their school system.

The nominating committee consisted of Al Gabriel, superintendent at Pickaway Twp., William B. Burke and V. Dayton Sheets, supervising principals at Jackson and Duvall schools respectively.

Public's Respect For Doctors Dip From Old Days

DETROIT (AP)—A psychiatrist says the public thinks less of doctors now than it once did because the doctors make the mistake of wearing good clothes and driving the best cars.

"People don't like that," Dr. Lewis L. Robbins of Hillside Hospital, Glen Oaks, N.Y., told the Michigan State Medical Society.'

He said doctors arouse envy by appearing so successful.

"People had reverence and respect for the old time doctor who sat up all night with the child, even though the child usually died," he continued.

TB Label Day Is Set for Tuesday

Those participating are asked to bring a sack lunch. A beverage will be furnished. Volunteer helpers are welcome.

Gabby Youth Bares Killing

3 Cincy Teen-Agers In on Savage Beating

CINCINNATI (AP)—Police say a gabby teenager, arrested for drunkenness at his home, whispered a story to an older inmate of county jail that led officers to uncover the savage murder of an old man Thursday.

And Detective Chief Henry Sandman said it led them to two more teenagers—Lawrence Zwick, 19, and Andy Davis, 17.

Charges have not been filed against the trio pending the outcome of further investigation.

Investigators said Ed Garrett, 17, found incoherent at his home last Tuesday and arrested by a patrolman, blurted out a story of watching Zwick slug and stomp an old man and then hurl him down a 30-foot embankment.

Investigators said Garrett told them he, Zwick and Davis had been standing on a corner drinking wine and when they ran out of money, Zwick suggested they "roll" a man coming toward them.

Garrett said Zwick put his arm around the man's shoulder in a friendly manner and led him down under the viaduct.

Officers quoted the youth as giving this account:

"Zwick sucker-punched him in the face. The man fell down and moaned. Then Zwick straddled him and beat him in the face with his fists.

"I said, 'Zwick, don't hit him any more.' Then Zwick said, 'now dammit, he knows my name. I got to kill him. I got to get rid of him.' "

Police said Garrett told them Zwick stamped on the victim's face with both feet and then threw him over the bank.

The county prosecutor's office first got wind of the story from another prisoner Thursday, who had heard it in the jail.

U.S., Assures Nationalists It Won't Retreat from Reds

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The United States has reassured Nationalist China there is no change in its policy of refusing to give ground in the face of continued Communist attacks on Quemoy and of demanding a cease-fire.

U.S. Ambassador Everett F. Drumright relayed this information from Secretary of State Dulles to President Chiang Kai-shek Thursday night.

Chiang's reaction was not disclosed but the Foreign Ministry rejected again today Dulles's suggestion for reducing Nationalist military strength on the offshore islands if the Communists will stop shooting.

Thus the two governments held different policies on ending the Formosa Strait crisis, now in its 42nd day.

But there was increasing belief the artillery blockade was losing its effectiveness as sea convoys and air drops kept on unloading supplies. A massive increase in their size is expected soon with the help of U.S. equipment now being turned over to the Nationalists.

The supply situation is very much improved, said Rear Adm. Liu Hoh-tu, Defense Ministry spokesman.

And Vice Adm. Roland N. Smoot, head of the U.S. Taiwan (Formosa) Defense Command, said in an interview the Quemoys can now hold out indefinitely under present conditions.

Any enlargement of the offshore war would come from the Communists, not the Nationalists, Smoot said. The Nationalists recognize the importance of keeping the Communists tagged with the blame for aggression, he added.

Smoot said the Nationalists understood the world desire for a negotiated cease-fire and would accept one if it did not prejudice their sovereign rights. He did not define those rights.

Dulles' message seeking to reassure Chiang was sent after Chinese Nationalist officials expressed fears that American policy was shifting in a way that might prejudice Nationalist rights.

Red Cross Bloodmobile Unit Slated for Visit Here Monday

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit Pickaway County on Monday. It will set up operations in the First Methodist Church from 11 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Mumford Kirkwood Jr., Pickaway County Blood Program Chairman, has labelled this an "Extra Effort" visit, in the hope that the quota of 150 pints might be reached.

The committee has sent special letters to organizations, local committee chairmen, churches and industries, giving special quotas and outlining the needs of the community. If all groups meet these askings and the quota is met, residents of Pickaway County will not need to worry about lack of available blood in cases of emergency.

The committee views with much concern a report of yearly activities recently received from the Columbus Regional Blood Center, which comprises twenty-seven counties in central Ohio.

• • •

FOR THE fiscal year ending in July, 1958, Pickaway County stands in 28th place in the amount of blood collected in relation to its quota. With a united effort of all during the remaining six visits of the current year, Pickaway county's record can easily be improved for the 1958-59 year.

In spite of this poor support on the part of the general public, no citizen of Pickaway County is ever refused the blood he needs. If it is not available at the center, an effort is made either by the center or the local Chapter of the American Red Cross to obtain it elsewhere.

Donors may avoid waiting in line at the Bloodmobile if they will call either 336 or 1835 and have their name placed on the schedule sheet.

BANDMOTHERS are anticipating having 1,600 feet of pennies Monday when the first overall collection of coinbooks from the schools will be made.

Drive workers are asking every family to empty their pockets and purses of pennies each evening into a box or little jar to save them for a boy or girl who is trying to win one of the individual collection prizes.

The Bandmothers are not asking for nickels, dimes or quarters — just pennies. They hope that everyone who is proud of the Circleville High School band will remember for the next eight weeks, "Don't spend a red cent—save it for the Bandmothers".

Shower Mishap Fatal

Anti-NAACP Drive Planned

Segregationist Blames Group for Disorders

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett Thursday bared plans for an all-out campaign against operations of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People. He blamed the organization for the South's racial problems.

An NAACP official promptly charged the planned attack was a spectacular effort by Arkansas politicians to divert attention from their failure to solve the school integration dilemma here.

Bennett unveiled a six-point plan for hampering activities of the NAACP and said he had asked congressional delegations of 14 southern states to join in what he termed a "southern plan for peace."

Clarence A. Laws, Arkansas field secretary for the NAACP, said the Bennett plan undoubtedly would "shock decent, freedom-loving citizens everywhere."

Laws contended the state's political leaders want to throw up a political smokescreen to cover themselves "for having so miserably misinformed and misled the people of Arkansas in the school controversy."

Bennett's strategy calls for the withdrawal of federal tax deduction privileges for the NAACP, state pressure on the organization's attorneys, economic pressure and criminal prosecution of individuals allied with the NAACP cause.

Meanwhile, the head of a newly formed private school corporation expressed a hope the city's white high school students could begin studies next week.

Dr. T. J. Raney, head of the Little Rock Private School Corp. said Thursday a recent appeal for financial aid to the organization had brought a flood of donations.

OMVI Accusation Referred to Jury

Ernest E. Schwalbach, 34, Ashville, accused of driving under the influence of intoxicants, was bound to the Pickaway County Grand Jury today by his own request.

Bond was set at $200 in Circleville Municipal Court. He was arrested by the State Highway Patrol.

Nationalists Order Austere Life for Aides

TAIPEI (AP) — The Nationalist Cabinet has ordered all government officials to live an austere wartime life in view of the situation on the offshore islands.

These are some of the injunctions:

Don't gamble.
Don't give unnecessary parties.

Delma Mills Named PCTA President

Mrs. Robert Mills, 118 Dunmore Road, was last night elected as President of the Pickaway County Teachers Assn. at a teachers' picnic held in the Ashville School.

Assisting Mrs. Mills with this year's administration will be Miss Dehl Renick, Jackson Twp. elementary teacher, who was elected vice president and Donald Rose, principal of the South Bloomfield elementary school, elected secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Delma Jean Mills is a high school teacher at Pickaway Twp. school. The picnic meal was furnished free and prepared by the Ashville Parent Teachers Assn.

Carl Bennett, Walnut Twp. high school teacher, was picnic chairman and Everett Mehrley, Ashville-Harrison music teacher, was in charge of the program. A Walnut Twp. quartet rendered songs. It was composed of Bennett, Mrs. Annette D. Vandy, Miss Mary Jo Gaskella and Gene Houser.

AFTER GROUP singing, Jeffery Peters, Jackson Twp., sang a few solos. He was accompanied by Judy Hinton. George McDowell, county superintendent, introduced the superintendents, who in turn introduced teachers in their school system.

The nominating committee consisted of Al Gabriel, superintendent at Pickaway Twp., William B. Burke and V. Dayton Sheets, supervising principals at Jackson and Duvall schools respectively.

Public's Respect For Doctors Dip From Old Days

DETROIT (AP)—A psychiatrist says the public thinks less of doctors now than it once did because the doctors make the mistake of wearing good clothes and driving the best cars.

"People don't like that," Dr. Lewis L. Robbins of Hillside Hospital, Glen Oaks, N.Y., told the Michigan State Medical Society.

He said doctors arouse envy by appearing so successful.

"People had reverence and respect for the old time doctor who sat up all night with the child, even though the child usually died," he continued.

TB Label Day Is Set for Tuesday

Tuberculosis Label Day will be held from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. Tuesday in the Trinity Lutheran Church Parish House.

Ladies of the local TB organization will prepare envelopes for the coming Christmas Deal drive here.

Those participating are asked to bring a sack lunch. A beverage will be furnished. Volunteer helpers are welcome.

Gabby Youth Bares Killing

3 Cincy Teen-Agers In on Savage Beating

CINCINNATI (AP)—Police say a gabby teenager, arrested for drunkenness at his home, whispered a story to an older inmate of county jail that led officers to uncover the savage murder of an old man Thursday.

And Detective Chief Henry Sandman said it led them to two more teenagers—Lawrence Zwick, 19, and Andy Davis, 17.

Charges have not been filed against the trio pending the outcome of further investigation.

Investigators said Ed Garrett, 17, found incoherent at his home last Tuesday and arrested by a patrolman, blurted out a story of watching Zwick slug and stomp an old man and then hurl him down a 30-foot embankment.

Investigators said Garrett told them he, Zwick and Davis had been standing on a corner drinking wine and when they ran out of money, Zwick suggested they "roll" a man coming toward them.

Garrett said Zwick put his arm around the man's shoulder in a friendly manner and led him down under the viaduct.

Officers quoted the youth as giving this account:

"Zwick sucker-punched him in the face. The man fell down and moaned. Then Zwick straddled him and beat him in the face with his fists.

"I said, 'Zwick, don't hit him any more.' Then Zwick said, 'now dammit, he knows my name. I got to kill him. I got to get rid of him.'"

Police said Garrett told them Zwick stamped on the victim's face with both feet and then threw him over the bank.

The county prosecutor's office first got wind of the story from another prisoner Thursday, who had heard it in the jail.

Phone Booth Entered

Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff today was investigating a forced entry to a telephone booth at Thompson's Restaurant on Route 23 south of Circleville. The amount of money taken and damage involved was not immediately determined.

U.S., Assures Nationalists It Won't Retreat from Reds

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The United States has reassured Nationalist China there is no change in its policy of refusing to give ground in the face of continued Communist attacks on Quemoy and of demanding a cease-fire.

U.S. Ambassador Everett F. Drumright relayed this information from Secretary of State Dulles to President Chiang Kai-shek Thursday night.

Chiang's reaction was not disclosed but the Foreign Ministry rejected again today Dulles's suggestion for reducing Nationalist military strength on the offshore islands if the Communists will stop shooting.

Thus the two governments held different policies on ending the Formosa Strait crisis, now in its 42nd day.

But there was increasing belief the artillery blockade was losing its effectiveness as sea convoys and air drops kept on unloading supplies. A massive increase in their size is expected soon with the help of U.S. equipment now being turned over to the Nationalists.

The supply situation is very much improved, said Rear Adm. Liu Hoh-tu, Defense Ministry spokesman.

And Vice Adm. Roland N. Smoot, head of the U.S. Taiwan (Formosa) Defense Command, said in an interview the Quemoys can now hold out indefinitely under present conditions.

Any enlargement of the offshore war would come from the Communists, not the Nationalists, Smoot said. The Nationalists recognize the importance of keeping the Communists tagged with the blame for aggression, he added.

Smoot said the Nationalists understood the world desire for a negotiated cease-fire and would accept one if it did not prejudice their sovereign rights. He did not define those rights.

Dulles' message seeking to reassure Chiang was sent after Chinese Nationalist officials expressed fears that American policy was shifting in a way that might prejudice Nationalist rights.

Red Cross Bloodmobile Unit Slated for Visit Here Monday

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit Pickaway County on Monday. It will set up operations in the First Methodist Church from 11 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Mumford Kirkwood Jr., Pickaway County Blood Program Chairman, has labelled this an "Extra Effort" visit, in the hope that the quota of 150 pints might be reached.

The committee has sent special letters to organizations, local committee chairmen, churches and industries, giving special quotas and outlining the needs of the community. If all groups meet these askings and the quota is met, residents of Pickaway County will not need to worry about lack of available blood in cases of emergency.

The committee views with much concern a report of yearly activities recently received from the Columbus Regional Blood Center, which comprises twenty-seven counties in central Ohio.

• • •

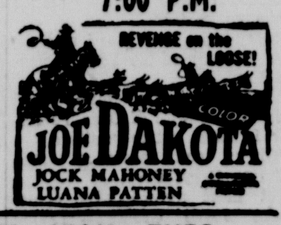

FOR THE fiscal year ending in July, 1958, Pickaway County stands in 26th place in the amount of blood collected in relation to its quota. With a united effort of all, during the remaining six visits of the current year, Pickaway county's record can easily be improved for the 1958-59 year.

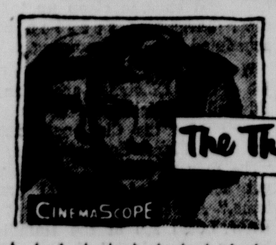

In spite of this poor support on the part of the general public, no citizen of Pickaway County is ever refused the blood he needs. If it is not available at the center, an effort is made either by the center or the local Chapter of the American Red Cross to obtain it elsewhere.

Donors may avoid waiting in line at the Bloodmobile if they will call either 336 or 1835 and have their name placed on the schedule sheet.

DIAL SERVICE

CIRCLEVILLE

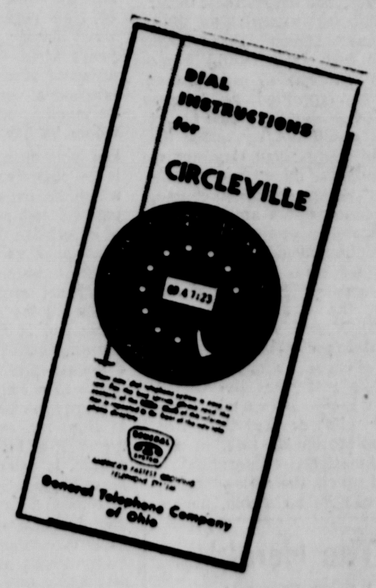

Six-Thirty A. M. . . . Sunrise . . . Sunday morning, October 5 marks the beginning of a new era of communications progress in Circleville. The same spirit of service that began with the first telephone in this great community 68 years ago is now bringing you vastly improved telephone communications through the introduction of modern dial telephone service.

During the past year and a half, telephone people have been working hard to prepare for this improvement in your telephone service.

General telephone men and women here in your community want to take this opportunity to express their appreciation for the fine co-operation of all Circleville telephone users.

The million dollar program is about to become a reality . . . and paves the way for still more telephone advancement in this rapidly expanding community. Although this modern dial system will furnish you a completely new telephone service, we will always be on hand to give you personalized attention.

General Telephone operators, service representatives, installers, construction forces, and all who have been a part of bringing dial service to you join in saying, "Thank you . . . Circleville. We know you will enjoy the convenience of your new dial telephone service."

A-Energy Use on Upswing

Nuclear power plants received the most thorough analysis to date during the recently ended conference on atomic energy at Geneva, Switzerland.

Representing 69 nations, 2,700 governmental delegates and a myriad of observers from 19 international organizations and 25 nongovernmental groups surveyed the accomplishments of nuclear power-producers and prognosticated the impact on civilization of this type of energy producer in the years to come.

Much greater interest was evident in the 1958 discussions on peaceful uses of the atom than was observed at the first such meeting in 1955 — largely due, no doubt, to the amazing strides man has taken into the world of science fiction during the intervening three years.

Who could have imagined, in 1955, that man three years later would be operating successful nuclear electric plants, have repeatedly placed satellites in orbit about the mother planet, and made at least one attempt to reach the moon?

Thus, the 6,700 participants in Geneva who read and heard debated 2,135 scientific papers on the subject of nuclear power showed much greater interest in a subject which is no longer merely a distant possibility. If there were any doubts about the feasibility of producing energy through atoms, it was soon dispelled by reports from the United States and Great Britain that hundreds of millions of kilowatt-hours of usable electricity have already been produced by fission power plants.

By 1970, the capacity of nuclear electric generators is expected to be 50 times the present output, but sooner than that some countries—principally Great Britain — expect to be producing nuclear electric power that is cheaper than that of conventional origin.

Peaceful uses of atomic and hydrogen energy are growing in reality and conjecture. Those nations which are cooperating in its inception not only are insuring themselves against the day when conventional fuel resources are depleted, but are slowly turning the world's attention from disastrous uses of nuclear energy to those of humanitarian service.

Courtin' Main

We want to congratulate the General Telephone Co. on its new dial telephone system here. We're sure every phone user in and around Circleville will be pleased with the new automatics. However, we'll miss chatting with the pleasant operator, whose cheery voice made some mornings much brighter.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THE THEATRE GUILD once received a play script whose opening curtain rose on a little old French lady knitting in her rocker. Her husband entered, visibly fatigued, and placed his black instrument bag on the table.

"Ah, Pierre," said the lady. "You have been away all night. Was it a difficult delivery?"

"Yes," answered the weary doctor. "But it was worth it. History was made last night. The baby's name is—Victor Hugo."

Of course the author wasn't able to maintain that pace all evening.

Strains Cause Blood Pressure

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

Whether business is good or whether it is bad, some businessmen are likely to be troubled by high blood pressure.

If things are going well, a businessman may strain too hard to make them go even better. If the outlook is bad, he may worry all the more.

We have known for a long time that persons who work under constant strain and worry a great deal over various problems are particularly susceptible to hypertension.

Hypertension, itself, is not a disease. Rather it's a sign that something is wrong somewhere inside.

You can have high blood pressure without being ill or without danger of causing damage to your heart or arteries. Such a condition might exist for several days, weeks or even longer before your blood pressure dropped back to normal.

If the pressure remains consistently high for a long period of time, however, it might cause serious damage to the heart, kidneys and other body organs.

If you have high blood pressure, you should be under the care of a doctor. You should also follow these ten simple rules:

1. Take it easy. Walk, never run.
2. Worry and argue as little as possible. Go out of your way to avoid disagreements.
3. Keep weight normal.
4. Eat four or five light meals a day instead of three heavy ones.
5. Take it easy on all stimulants. This includes coffee, as well as tobacco and alcohol.
6. Rest when you begin to feel tired, not after you are all tuckered out.
7. Try to nap twice a day, half an hour before lunch and from half an hour to an entire hour before dinner. If you can't get to sleep, at least spend this time relaxing.
8. Try to quit work in time to permit about an hour of light outdoor exercise. Walking, don't forget, is exercise.
9. Get to bed in time to insure adequate rest. Certainly you should be in bed before midnight.
10. Practice moderation in everything.

Question and Answer

Q.: Does a rash in a child always indicate the presence of a communicable disease?

The World Today

By James Marlow

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will be a remarkable thing if the Communists—with all the initiative in their hands—permit any rest for U.S. policy in the Far East.

But the possibility by no means can be ruled out. Already there are indications Moscow anticipates a gradual easing of the Far East crisis.

The Soviets seem to be preparing for that, getting ready to swing the spotlight slowly back again to the Middle East.

The Communists do not have control over the rise and fall of crises in the Arab East. Their mode of operation there is to take fullest advantage of crises which do arise.

The Communists do have control over the Formosa crisis. When they want to start it going, they have only to order the shooting to begin. When they want it eased, they have only to ease off the shooting.

By pouring on pressure now, the Red Chinese might logically hope to wrest at least the offshore islands from the Nationalists. The United States clearly does not want to go to war over the islands. But there are a number of elements in the crisis which can spell danger to the Communists themselves.

Not the least of these elements is the possibility that the situation can damage relations between Moscow and Red China.

In an aside at his Wednesday news conference, President Eisenhower wondered why, if the Nationalist-Communist strife was really civil war, Soviet boss Khrushchev should say the Soviet Union might participate in that war.

However, Khrushchev has seemed rather anxious to avoid giving the impression the Soviets would join Red China in a war on the Nationalist Formosa regime. He said an attack by another power on Red China would be considered an attack on the U.S.S.R. The Peiping-Moscow treaty requires that.

Moscow probably would be unwilling to underwrite a real risk of war between Red China and the United States. The Soviets, however, still are in a position to persuade the Red Chinese to ease the crisis. Without Soviet help, Red China would find a long-sustained shelling of the offshore islands (now in its second month) an expensive proposition.

The Middle East offers a more fertile field for Communist endeavors. There the Soviets are not directly involved. They can keep their own situation relatively secure. And the Middle East does not raise the problem of aggravations between the two big Communist allies.

American and British troop withdrawals from Lebanon and Jordan may be a signal for the Soviets to concentrate the lion's share of their attention on the Arabs once again, for good reasons.

When Britain leaves Jordan, there's a good chance of a new Holy Land explosion. When the Americans leave Lebanon, a government which for all practical purposes is a revolutionary regime, will be in control.

There are evidences of a tug-of-war for power inside Iraq's revolutionary regime. The oil of Kuwait is of enormous economic importance to Britain, and the British will fight hard if Arab nationalist pressures threaten their presence in the little Persian Gulf sheikdom.

Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko apparently caught the significance of a single little word in the announcement of Britain's withdrawl plans. She would, said Britain, "begin" the withdrawal Oct. 20. In a U.N. speech, Gromyko called it stalling.

It's likely to be a slow and reluctant withdrawal, far too slow to suit the Soviets. Moscow hopes to apply the heat in the Middle East. The new explosion there, which by present indications could come some time around the turn of the year, cannot arrive too soon for Moscow.

Local Commandery Set for Conclave

Columbus will be host city for the start of the 116th annual conclave of the Grand Commandery Knights Templar of Ohio on October 9-13.

Approximately 2,500 Sir Knights are expected in Columbus for the occasion. A spectacular all-Masonic parade has been set for the afternoon of October 11.

The 160 members of the local Scioto Commandery will be represented at the conclave by Eminent Commander Rubert L. Ballentine, 114 Collins Court, and a group from the membership.

Parking Firm Levies Ban Against Too-Big Autos

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Some 1959 model autos are too long, too low and covered with too many expensive gadgets to risk parking them, a St. Louis parking firm has decided.

Wayne Stedelin, vice president of the City Auto Parks Co., said Cadillacs are nine inches longer this year and so long and wide that the firm would have to rebuild its ramps to accommodate them.

Owners of 1959 Cadillacs were warned to stay away from the firm's six parking lots.

Nation's '58 Fire Loss Climbs to Record High

BOSTON (AP) — Two million fires with aggregate destruction of $1,280,000,000 last year sent American fire losses to the highest point in the country's history, the National Fire Protection Assn. reported today.

Losses have moved up to new record totals for three successive years, the announcement said, and in 1957 exceeded 1956 losses by about $48,350,000.

Objective Books About Reds

By George Sokolsky

Prof. Harry Overstreet and his wife, Bonaro, form an interesting team of psychologists who approach political problems, not from the standpoint either of the politician or the journalist but as technicians in the science of human behavior, which makes much difference. Most of their writings have been in the field of how the mind works and perhaps as we approach their newest book, "What We Must Know About Communism," it is still in their disciplined field of the mind.

For Communism is a curious phenomenon which is sweeping much of the world and yet seeds down in the least expected places. Certainly Karl Marx never expected that his particular form of Dialectical Materialism would assume the proportions of a religion in Orthodox, backward, agricultural Russia, nor could anyone have foreseen that its second center of strength would be China.

In fact, the Overstreets point out that as recently as 1943, "Fortune" showed through an opinion poll conducted by Elmo Roper "... that 48 per cent of the group specified as 'executives' were confident that Soviet Russia would not try, after the war, 'to bring about Communist governments in other countries.'" Roper could, of course, find no such figure among working journalists who write on this subject, for journalists are a suspicious folk who disbelieve words and turn to deeds. Nevertheless, the Overstreets report that "In March of that same year, Gardner Cowles, Jr., publisher of 'Look,' wrote that Stalin 'wants just what the United States wants — security and peace.' 'Life' devoted its entire issue of March 29, 1943, to 'Soviet - American cooperation' — without which, the editors stated, 'there can be no stable, peaceful world.' As for the restrictive character of the Communist regime: 'When we take into account what the USSR has accomplished in 20 years ... we can make allowances for certain shortcomings, however deplorable.'"

This is very sad, indeed, for the years since then have clearly proved these judgments to have been wrong and I can list a number of American journalists and experts who were warning the American people at that very time that the Trojan Horse is a Communist device which must be suspect at all times

The Overstreets do an excellent job of objective writing in this field, as they would in any other and this book is well worth reading.

At the same time, another volume comes to me from my old colleague in China, Edward Hunter, entitled "The Black Book on Red China." It may be difficult to get in book stores, as it is published by The Bookmailer, New York 16, New York. Edward Hunter has devoted many years of his life to China and adjacent areas, knows Oriental languages, and has a keen understanding of the people among whom he has lived and worked. His is no distant casual view nor is he objective about a world in which he lives. He writes with passion and zest and assurance of knowledge. He also has the advantage of using original source material which seems to be a dying art except in specialized books for the learned. His book, therefore, is full of quotations, something that I like very much, I always preferring a direct quote to a confused paraphrase.

I was particularly interested in Hunter's chapter on "Martyred Religion," which, of course, is to be expected in any Marxist country where religion is regarded as an opiate for the people, to be extirpated as soon as is convenient.

China had, before the Communist Revolution, a small number of Christians, comparatively. The Roman Catholics were more numerous than the Protestants, who were of many sects and denominations. The influence of Christianity, however, was enormous. In my day, for instance, nearly every one in the foreign service had studied at a Christian university either in China or abroad.

The Chinese Communists not only persecuted the Christian churches but took them over and converted them into agencies of political action. Hunter tells of the publication of a Protestant magazine, "Heavenly Wind," which is Communist government owned and which is used for Communist propaganda among the remaining Christians. Catholics are treated worse than Protestants.

Hunter's book, "The Black Book on Red China," is particularly worth while at this moment when the propaganda machine is at work to give the impression that Chinese Communists might be good ones like Tito.

A-Energy Use on Upswing

Nuclear power plants received the most thorough analysis to date during the recently ended conference on atomic energy at Geneva, Switzerland.

Representing 69 nations, 2,700 governmental delegates and a myriad of observers from 19 international organizations and 25 nongovernmental groups surveyed the accomplishments of nuclear power-producers and prognosticated the impact on civilization of this type of energy producer in the years to come.

Much greater interest was evident in the 1958 discussions on peaceful uses of the atom than was observed at the first such meeting in 1955 — largely due, no doubt, to the amazing strides man has taken into the world of science fiction during the intervening three years.

Who could have imagined, in 1955, that man three years later would be operating successful nuclear electric plants, have repeatedly placed satellites in orbit about the mother planet, and made at least one attempt to reach the moon?

Thus, the 6,700 participants in Geneva who read and heard debated 2,135 scientific papers on the subject of nuclear power showed much greater interest in a subject which is no longer merely a distant possibility. If there were any doubts about the feasibility of producing energy through atoms, it was soon dispelled by reports from the United States and Great Britain that hundreds of millions of kilowatt-hours of usable electricity have already been produced by fission power plants.

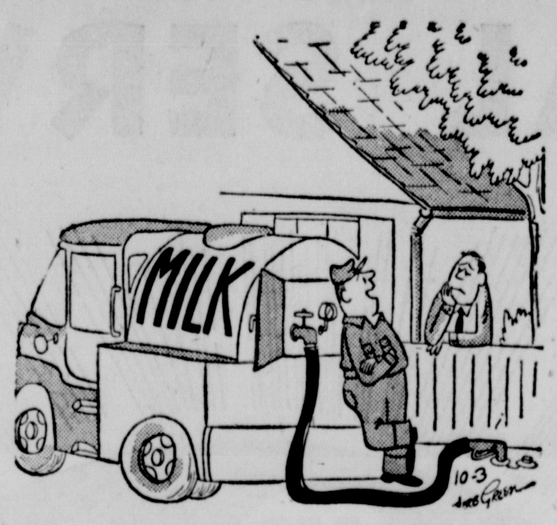

By 1970, the capacity of nuclear electric generators is expected to be 50 times the present output, but sooner than that some countries—principally Great Britain — expect to be producing nuclear electric power that is cheaper than that of conventional origin.

Peaceful uses of atomic and hydrogen energy are growing in reality and conjecture. Those nations which are cooperating in its inception not only are insuring themselves against the day when conventional fuel resources are depleted, but are slowly turning the world's attention from disastrous uses of nuclear energy to those of humanitarian service.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THE THEATRE GUILD once received a play script whose opening curtain rose on a little old French lady knitting in her rocker. Her husband entered, visibly fatigued, and placed his black instrument bag on the table.

"Ah, Pierre," said the lady. "You have been away all night. Was it a difficult delivery?"

"Yes," answered the weary doctor. "But it was worth it. History was made last night. The baby's name is—Victor Hugo."

Of course the author wasn't able to maintain that pace all evening.

Strains Cause Blood Pressure

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

Whether business is good or whether it is bad, some businessmen are likely to be troubled by high blood pressure.

If things are going well, a businessman may strain too hard to make them go even better. If the outlook is bad, he may worry all the more.

We have known for a long time that persons who work under constant strain and worry a great deal over various problems are particularly susceptible to hypertension.

Hypertension, itself, is not a disease. Rather it's a sign that something is wrong somewhere inside.

You can have high blood pressure without being ill or without danger of causing damage to your heart or arteries. Such a condition might exist for several days, weeks or even longer before your blood pressure dropped back to normal.

If the pressure remains consistently high for a long period of time, however, it might cause serious damage to the heart, kidneys and other body organs.

If you have high blood pressure, you should be under the care of a doctor. You should also follow these ten simple rules:

1. Take it easy. Walk, never run.
2. Worry and argue as little as possible. Go out of your way to avoid disagreements.
3. Keep weight normal.
4. Eat four or five light meals a day instead of three heavy ones.
5. Take it easy on all stimulants. This includes coffee, as well as tobacco and alcohol.
6. Rest when you begin to feel tired, not after you are all tuckered out.
7. Try to nap twice a day, half an hour before lunch and from half an hour to an entire hour before dinner. If you can't get to sleep, at least spend this time relaxing.
8. Try to quit work in time to permit about an hour of light outdoor exercise. Walking, don't forget, is exercise.
9. Get to bed in time to insure adequate rest. Certainly you should be in bed before midnight.
10. Practice moderation in everything.

Q.: Does a rash in a child always indicate the presence of a comm nicable disease?

The World Today

By James Marlow

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will be a remarkable thing if the Communists—with all the initiative in their hands—permit any rest for U.S. policy in the Far East.

But the possibility by no means can be ruled out. Already there are indications Moscow anticipates a gradual easing of the Far East crisis.

The Soviets seem to be preparing for that, getting ready to swing the spotlight slowly back again to the Middle East.

The Communists do not have control over the rise and fall of crises in the Arab East. Their mode of operation there is to take fullest advantage of crises which do arise.

The Communists do have control over the Formosa crisis. When they want to start it going, they have only to order the shooting to begin. When they want it eased, they have only to ease off the shooting.

By pouring on pressure now, the Red Chinese might logically hope to wrest at least the offshore islands from the Nationalists. The United States clearly does not want to go to war over the islands. But there are a number of elements in the crisis which can spell danger to the Communists themselves.

Not the least of these elements is the possibility that the situation can damage relations between Moscow and Red China.

In an aside at his Wednesday news conference, President Eisenhower wondered why, if the Nationalist-Communist strife was really civil war, Soviet boss Khrushchev should say the Soviet Union might participate in that war.

However, Khrushchev has seemed rather anxious to avoid giving the impression the Soviets would join Red China in a war on the Nationalist Formosa regime. He said an attack by another power on Red China would be considered an attack on the U.S.S.R. The Peiping-Moscow treaty requires that.

Moscow probably would be unwilling to underwrite a real risk of war between Red China and the United States. The Soviets, however, still are in a position to persuade the Red Chinese to ease the crisis. Without Soviet help, Red China would find a long-sustained shelling of the offshore islands (now in its second month) an expensive proposition.

The Middle East offers a more fertile field for Communist endeavors. There the Soviets are not directly involved. They can keep their own situation relatively secure. And the Middle East does not raise the problem of aggravations between the two big Communist allies.

American and British troop withdrawals from Lebanon and Jordan may be a signal for the Soviets to concentrate the lion's share of their attention on the Arabs once again, for good reasons.

When Britain leaves Jordan, there's a good chance of a new Holy Land explosion. When the Americans leave Lebanon, a government which for all practical purposes is a revolutionary regime, will be in control.

There are evidences of a tug-of-war for power inside Iraq's revolutionary regime. The oil of Kuwait is of enormous economic importance to Britain, and the British will fight hard if Arab nationalist pressures threaten their presence in the little Persian Gulf sheikdom.

Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko apparently caught the significance of a single little word in the announcement of Britain's withdrawl plans. She would, said Britain, "begin" the withdrawal Oct. 20. In a U.N. speech, Gromyko called it stalling.

It's likely to be a slow and reluctant withdrawal, far too slow to suit the Soviets. Moscow hopes to apply the heat in the Middle East. The new explosion there, which by present indications could come some time around the turn of the year, cannot arrive too soon for Moscow.

Nation's '58 Fire Loss Climbs to Record High

BOSTON (AP) — Two million fires with aggregate destruction of $1,280,000,000 last year sent American fire losses to the highest point in the country's history, the National Fire Protection Assn. reported today.

Losses have moved up to new record totals for three successive years, the announcement said, and in 1957 exceeded 1956 losses by about $48,350,000.

Bricker's Votes Irk AFL-CIO

Union Tallies 'Score' On Ohio Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP)—The AFL-CIO doesn't like the way Sen. John W. Bricker has been casting his votes. And his Democratic colleague in the Senate, Frank J. Lausche, has done little better.

The AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education graded Congress on issues selected by the committee. Between 1947 and 1956, Bricker cast only one "right" vote. Lausche in his two years had a score of nine "wrong," four "right" and three either "not voting" or "paired."

"Votes are marked either right or wrong," says COPE, "on the basis of the official AFL-CIO position."

On the House side, Ohio Democratic members compiled the best long term voting records according to COPE standards. For the years 1957-1956 they failed as follows ("right" votes first.)

Michael J. Kirwan of Youngstown (19-0); Michael A. Feighan of Cleveland (19-0); James G Polk of Highland (18-0); Wayne L. Hays of Flushing (17-0); T. Ludlow Ashley of Toledo (5-0); Charles A. Vanik of Cleveland (5-0).

Among Ohio Republicans in the House, William McCulloch of Piqua had no "rights" and 17 "wrongs." Cliff Clevenger, outgoing member from Bryan, had no "rights" and 16 "wrongs."

Here are the other Republican Ohioans in the House and their COPE scores:

Gordon H. Scherer of Cincinnati (1-11); William E. Hess of Cincinnati (2-12); Paul F. Schenck of Dayton (5-8); Clarence J. Brown of Blanchester (2-17).

Jackson E. Betts of Findlay (1-12); Thomas A. Jenkins of Ironton (1-18); David Dennison of Warren (not a member in 1947-56, but scored 5-8 in 1957-58).

John M. Vorys of Columbus (3-16); A. David Baumhart Jr. of Vermilion (4-1); William H. Ayres of Akron (5-8); John Henderson of Cambridge (1-4); Frank T. Bow of Canton (1-12).

J. Harry McGregor of West Lafayette (1-17); Frances P. Bolton of Lyndhurst (3-15); William Minshall of Rocky River (1-4).

Switch to Dial Telephones Climaxes Years of Planning

"D-Day" for "Dial-Day" is fast approaching its target date for the more than 11,000 residents of Circleville.

The Pickaway County seat will cut-over to the new dial service on schedule at 6:30 a. m. Sunday, as a result of General Telephone's years of planning and scheduling all phases of construction work and installation.

With just two days remaining before the actual change-over, engineering specialists and technicians in the central office are busy making final tests of the automatic switching equipment in preparation for the conversion.

This new dial system is the culmination of a $1 million expansion and improvement program first established about 1½ years ago by the General Telephone Company of Ohio.

* * *

CIRCLEVILLE'S telephone building, located at 113 Pinckney St., had to be doubled in size to accommodate the new dial switching equipment and the additional long distance switchboards.

The new central office not only brings the most modern dial service to the community, but provides a substantial increase in capacity to permit hundreds of additional phones to be connected.

The switchboard positions and the new central office equipment, manufactured by the Automatic Electric Company of Northlake, Ill., was installed by technicians from Automatic Electric and General Telephone on the first and second floors of the Circleville central office building. The switchboard equipment in Circleville includes 12 operator positions as compared to the former seven positions, almost doubling the efficiency of long distance call handling.

The local business office of the telephone company has moved into the new addition of the telephone building.

Another project in this service improvement program was the installation of some 4,700 new dial telephones in the Circleville exchange area. All wiring in homes and businesses was checked and replaced where necessary.

Company officials have pointed out that telephone service in the Circleville area has virtually doubled during the last 10 years. There were more than 6,000,000 local calls handled by the Circleville operators in 1957, while long distance calls tripled during the same period.

This dial conversion program has involved a number of construction and installation projects providing the exchange area with the latest, most modern telephone service possible. Included among these projects are aerial and underground cable construction, new pole and wire additions, and new carrier circuit installations.

Among the numerous outside plant construction projects is the replacement and extension of aerial cable on Ohio St. and Renick Road, past the General Electric plant in Circleville.

* * *

OTHER PROJECTS include the construction of poles and open wire toward the village of Ringgold, providing new outside plant facilities throughout that area.

Construction crews placed new aerial cable to Stoutsville and rebuilt the poles and lines to Tarlton.

In addition, aerial cable facilities were extended east on Route 22 and north into Knollwood Village. Likewise, additional aerial cable was constructed into the new residential section north of Northridge Road.

General Telephone replaced most of the aerial cable serving the eastern section of Circleville, and additional cable was also placed in the southwest section New underground cable was constructed to serve the north and east sections of the community.

Providing almost a complete renovation of Circleville's outside plant equipment, the company added approximately 725 feet of new underground conduit and three new manholes.

Crews presently are extending aerial cable west across the new Scioto River Bridge on Route 22, and rebuilding all telephone lines toward Darbyville.

Other major projects include aerial cable additions on Pickaway St. to Northridge Road, and the placement of new aerial cable facilities north on Atwater to Walnut Creek Pike.

Circleville's conversion to dial operation Sunday, paves the way for still more telephone advancement, and plans are now in progress for additional construction and expansion projects scheduled for 1959 as part of the continuous improvement program to expand service facilities throughout the entire area.

* * *

THE CONVERSION program at Circleville marks the 116th exchange to be cut-over to dial service by General Telephone since 1946. Company officials pointed out that this major project represents another important step in the company's continuing multi-million dollar expansion program, affecting the 182 central offices which serve more than 186,000 telephones in Ohio.

The General Telephone Company, with headquarters in Marion, is part of the General Telephone System, second largest telephone system in the nation which furnishes telephone service in 30 states.

Method in Madness

The Associated Pres Tells about radio station XEMH in Merida, Mexico which wanted to prove to advertisers it had a lot of listeners. So the station played one record over and over, 59 times.

Telephone lines were soon hammed. The management said it received 523 calls of protest in four hours.

Experts reckoned that this sampling meant the station has 25,000 or more listeners.

Nixon and Adlai Debate Formosa

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Vice President Nixon and Adlai Stevenson debated Formosa and other issues Thursday night—not face to face, but back to back.

The old foes and potential future rivals for president spoke in adjoining halls of the massive Oakland Civic Auditorium. A thick fire wall separated Republicans from Democrats.

Nixon told the Republicans the Eisenhower administration opposes turning the islands of Quemoy and Matsu over to the Chinese Communists. He said to do so would be a reward for aggression.

The vice president spoke of the administration's policy as being flexible toward negotiation if the Chinese Communists agree to a cease-fire. But he said it is firm against yielding to the use of force.

Stevenson told the Democrats that the United States should make clear it will fight to defend Formosa, but that the tiny islands off the coast of China are another matter.

He said Quemoy and Matsu historically always have belonged to China. He also said the present fight between Nationalists and Communists is a continuation of the Chinese civil war in which he believes the United States should not intervene.

Nixon, winding up a campaign swing of his home state, spoke before 850 persons who paid $100 a plate for dinner, and 1,000 more who chipped in $5 each just to listen. He was flanked by Sen. William F. Knowland and Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, Republican nominees for each other's present jobs.

Nixon made several passing references to "orators in the other room," but did not mention Stevenson by name. Knight was more pointed. He described the "gentlemen next door" as "some with holes in their shoes, some with holes in their heads." A Stevenson hole-in-the-shoe picture became a trademark of the two-time Democratic presidential candidate.

Stevenson didn't hesitate to needle Nixon. He started right off by saying he didn't know which Nixon was behind the wall—"the new or the old." He criticized President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles for "suddenly changing their positions" on Formosa, but observed, "Our agile vice president won't have much trouble catching up."

Nixon, on his side, denied there was either any change of policy or weakening of the administration position. This statement referred to Dulles' proposal for reducing the size of Nationalist forces on Quemoy and Matsu in the event of a dependable cease-fire.

SUSPICION — Michael Kapsalla, 42, of Reseda, Calif., sobs as he is placed in jail on a charge of suspicion of murdering James Whitting, 17, whom the man accused of trying to crash his teenage daughter's party. Police said Kapsalla told them the youth said, "Make me," when told to leave the party. Whitting fell during a scuffle, was rushed to a hospital and died.

Bricker's Votes Irk AFL-CIO

Union Tallies 'Score' On Ohio Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP)—The AFL-CIO doesn't like the way Sen. John W. Bricker has been casting his votes. And his Democratic colleague in the Senate, Frank J. Lausche, has done little better.

The AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education graded Congress on issues selected by the committee. Between 1947 and 1956, Bricker cast only one "right" vote. Lausche in his two years had a score of nine "wrong," four "right" and three either "not voting" or "paired."

"Votes are marked either right or wrong," says COPE, "on the basis of the official AFL-CIO position."

On the House side, Ohio Democratic members compiled the best long term voting records according to COPE standards. For the years 1957-1956 they failed as follows ("right" votes first.)

Michael J. Kirwan of Youngstown (19-0); Michael A. Feighan of Cleveland (19-0); James G Polk of Highland (18-0); Wayne L. Hays of Flushing (17-0); T. Ludlow Ashley of Toledo (5-0); Charles A. Vanik of Cleveland (5-0).

Among Ohio Republicans in the House, William McCulloch of Piqua had no "rights" and 17 "wrongs." Cliff Clevenger, outgoing member from Bryan, had no "rights" and 16 "wrongs."

Here are the other Republican Ohioans in the House and their COPE scores:

Gordon H. Scherer of Cincinnati (1-11); William E. Hess of Cincinnati (2-12); Paul F. Schenck of Dayton (5-8); Clarence J. Brown of Blanchester (2-17).

Jackson E. Betts of Findlay (1-12); Thomas A. Jenkins of Ironton (1-18); David Dennison of Warren (not a member in 1947-56, but scored 5-8 in 1957-58).

John M. Vorys of Columbus (3-16); A. David Baumhart Jr. of Vermilion (4-1); William H. Ayres of Akron (5-8); John Henderson of Cambridge (1-4); Frank T. Bow of Canton (1-12).

J. Harry McGregor of West Lafayette (1-17); Frances P. Bolton of Lyndhurst (3-15); William Minshall of Rocky River (1-4).

Switch to Dial Telephones Climaxes Years of Planning

"D-Day" for "Dial-Day" is fast approaching its target date for the more than 11,000 residents of Circleville.

The Pickaway County seat will cut-over to the new dial service on schedule at 6:30 a. m. Sunday, as a result of General Telephone's years of planning and scheduling all phases of construction work and installation.

With just two days remaining before the actual change-over, engineering specialists and technicians in the central office are busy making final tests of the automatic switching equipment in preparation for the conversion.

This new dial system is the culmination of a $1 million expansion and improvement program first established about 1½ years ago by the General Telephone Company of Ohio.

* * *

CIRCLEVILLE'S telephone building, located at 113 Pinckney St., had to be doubled in size to accommodate the new dial switching equipment and the additional long distance switchboards.

The new central office not only brings the most modern dial service to the community, but provides a substantial increase in capacity to permit hundreds of additional phones to be connected.

The switchboard positions and the new central office equipment, manufactured by the Automatic Electric Company of Northlake, Ill., was installed by technicians from Automatic Electric and General Telephone on the first and second floors of the Circleville central office building. The switchboard equipment in Circleville includes 12 operator positions as compared to the former seven positions, almost doubling the efficiency of long distance call handling.

The local business office of the telephone company has moved into the new addition of the telephone building.

Another project in this service improvement program was the installation of some 4,700 new dial telephones in the Circleville exchange area. All wiring in homes and businesses was checked and replaced where necessary.

Every Teen Can Afford To Look Neat and Clean

A JUMPER with sweater and blouse changes gives you a variety of classroom costumes, is feminine, a budget buy.

By JEANNE D'ARCY

We've been taken to task by a young reader who is at odds with a piece we wrote criticizing teen-age students for "slopping about in too-tight jeans, wearing run-down loafers and displaying pin-curled heads."

Bobbi—who signs herself "not so neat at times"—is ripping mad at our remarks.

"Have you taken a good look at any older citizens?" she asks in a well-written four page retaliation. "Well I have and I'm pretty astounded at the 'get-ups' women contrive and wear in public.

"I've seen everything this past summer from women who wear high heel shoes with baggy-sloppy shorts to others who are bleached blondes and have black-rooted frizzy hair."

We've seen them, too. For the record, let it be said we've pounced on oldsters as well as youngsters for being poorly groomed or dressing with bad taste.

When it comes to her own age group, Bobbi, who's 17, excuses jeans and T-shirts and pin-curled heads by pointing out that "some families can't afford stunning college clothes or permanent waves."

Undoubtedly, she's right, but jeans and shirts aren't the only clothes you can purchase on a slim budget. What about blouses with jumpers or skirts? They're feminine and far better suited to the classroom.

As for pin curls, lack of permanent-wave money is no excuse to show them to the world. Set hair before going to bed. Let it curl overnight. If you must make a public appearance while curls process, cover them up with a scarf.

Bobbi also defends "trodden-down loafers" because they're "so comfortable."

That may be, but wear them and you court trouble. For foot health—and corns and calluses can be terribly painful, Bobbi—young feet need proper support. Loose shoes with run-down heels don't provide it.

"Teens aren't perfect," writes Bobbi, "but couldn't you—or someone—say something nice about them once in a while?"

Poor Bobbi! She sounds so picked-upon.

The teen years are trying — no doubt about it. Every adult in sight seems bent on criticizing "the younger generation," but such comments aren't meant to be mean. Usually advice is offered because adults were kids once, too, and want to keep youngsters from making some of the mistakes they made way back then.

Household Hints

Oysters, prepared an old-fashioned American way, are rolled in bread crumbs and basted with butter while they are grilled. The seafood is served on toast and then hot melted butter mixed with lemon juice and minced parsley (maitre-d'hotel style) is poured over.

Next time you have a little sauerkraut leftover, add it to a tomato-vegetable soup.

Guest Night Planned by Ladies Aid

Guest night was planed when the Morris EUB Ladies Aid met Wednesday afternoon at the church. Plans were made by the aid for the group to entertain the Ladies Aids from several local churches. It will be held at 8 p. m. Thursday, October 9th, in the Morris Church.

The meeting opened by group singing "I'll Live for Him." A prayer was given by Mrs. Henry Dunkle and scripture lesson and prayer by Mrs. Myrtle Southward.

The business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Carl Anderson, president. The various committees were set up for the special guest night. It was reported that 21 sick calls were made and 31 cards were sent.

The next meeting will be held November 5 with Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Minnie Kerns as hostesses. The meeting place will be announced later.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served to the 11 members present by Mrs. Wilbur Pontius.

THE HIGH waistline effect for evening in a cocktail dress of jet black crepe is designed by Ceil Chapman. Figure-revealing along easy lines, the dress has a widely scooped neckline and softly draped sleeves, hemline and bodice, which is accented by a chandelier pin.

All-Day Meet Enjoyed by Home Group

Gourmet cookery was the lesson when the Home Demonstration Group of the Wayne Twp. Area met for an all-day session Wednesday at the school.

Mrs. Lewis Dean and Mrs. Clyde Karshner were the leaders. They prepared a meal featuring the uses of spices, herbs, seeds, condiments and seasonings.

The meal was enjoyed by the following members: Mrs. Wayne Fee, Mrs. John Brown, Mrs. Melvin Steck, Mrs. D. E. Mossbarger, Mrs. Russell Yaple, Mrs. Jesse Peart, Mrs. Robert Miller, Matt Brown and Delores and Jeffery Karshner.

The November 5th meeting will be held at 1:30 p. m. at the school. The subject will be "Preparing for Disaster."

Ibsen's Plays Discussed by Drama Group

Ibsen's plays were discussed when the Drama Group of the American Assn. of University Women met in the home of Mrs. Robert Doherty, N. Pickaway St., Wednesday evening.

The group continued its study of Henrick Ibsen's plays and the discussion centered around the following plays: "The Doll House," "The Master Building" and "Hedda Glaber."

At the next meeting the group will start their study of William Shakespeare's plays. "Hamlet" will be the first of the plays for study.

The next meeting will be held November 5th at the home of Mrs. J. L. Chilcote, Route 4.

Personals

Mrs. Carl P. Scarberry, the former Dorothy Tomlinson, 444 Stella Ave., left for Jacksonville, Fla., to join her husband. Seaman Scarberry has been stationed aboard the S.S. Saratoga, one of the Sixth Fleet serving in the Mediterranean and Far East. Mr. Scarberry will be discharged from the Navy on October 9th, and he and Mrs. Scarberry plan to visit several parts of Florida before returning to Circleville.

Junior Women's Club Plans Annual Harvest Moon Ball

Plans were completed for the annual Harvest Moon Ball by the Junior Women's Club when it met last night at the home of Mrs. Earl Weaver Jr., Route 4. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Harold Miller and Mrs. Earl Wolfe.

The Harvest Moon Ball will be held from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. Saturday in the Memorial Hall. The Ziggy Coyle Quintet has been engaged to play for the affair. Also tickets will be sold at the door.

Mrs. Stanley Spring, president, presided over the meeting. The group held guest night and 14 guests were present.

Guests present were: Mrs. Romaine Wilson, Mrs. John S. Unemployment In Ohio Dips

Batavia-Georgetown Area Added to List

13, No. 2: unemployment

WASHINGTON (AP)—Labor Department experts reported today unemployment in many Ohio industrial centers has been relieved somewhat by an upturn in manufacturing and trade.

Offsetting this, a new area—Batavia-Georgetown - West Union in southern Ohio—has been added to those with substantial unemployment.

Last April, department records show, about 220,000 Ohioans were collecting unemployment insurance. This number had been reduced to 180,000 by the middle of last month.

Labor Department personnel say, however, that changes in any given area have been fairly small. Most of them are due to pickups in the steel and automobile business.

Looking ahead, Ohio employers also expect further gains in department store trade because of the forthcoming Christmas season.

Cleveland — Improvement in steel, fabricated metals, electrical machinery. Small gains expected by local employers to continue at least into next month.

Canton—No significant change in steel expected soon, but some gains in manufacturing.

Akron—Some improvement in tire manufacturing and in trade.

Cincinnati—A pickup in manufacturing and auto parts.

Youngstown — Improvements in steel and other manufacturing, and trade.

Lorain-Elyria—Not much change in steel. Small increases in manufacturing, including auto parts.

Columbus, Dayton, Hamilton-Middletown, Toledo, Ashtabula-Conneaut, Athens-Logan - Nelsonville, Cambridge, Defiance, East Liverpool-Salem, Findlay - Tiffin-Fostoria, Kent-Ravenna, Kenton, Lima, Mansfield.

Marietta, Marion, New Philadelphia-Dover, Portsmouth - Chillicothe, St. Marys, Sandusky-Fremont, Springfield and Zanesville.

WINS FASHION AWARD—Designer Arnold Scaasi, named winner of the "Winnie," 1958 American Fashion Critics Award, is shown in his New York shop creating an evening ensemble. Scaasi was honored for his made-to-order conception in ready-to-wear clothes.

Every Teen Can Afford To Look Neat and Clean

By JEANNE D'ARCY

We've been taken to task by a young reader who is at odds with a piece we wrote criticizing teen-age students for "slopping about in too-tight jeans, wearing run-down loafers and displaying pin-curled heads."

Bobbi—who signs herself "not so neat at times"—is ripping mad at our remarks.

"Have you taken a good look at any older citizens?" she asks in a well-written four page retaliation. "Well I have and I'm pretty astounded at the 'get-ups' women contrive and wear in public.

"I've seen everything this past summer from women who wear high heel shoes with baggy-sloppy shorts to others who are bleached blondes and have black-rooted frizzy hair."

We've seen them, too. For the record, let it be said we've pounced on oldsters as well as youngsters for being poorly groomed or dressing with bad taste.

When it comes to her own age group, Bobbi, who's 17, excuses jeans and T-shirts and pin-curled heads by pointing out that "some families can't afford stunning college clothes or permanent waves."

Undoubtedly, she's right, but jeans and shirts aren't the only clothes you can purchase on a slim budget. What about blouses with jumpers or skirts? They're feminine and far better suited to the classroom.

As for pin curls, lack of permanent-wave money is no excuse to show them to the world. Set hair before going to bed. Let it curl overnight. If you must make a public appearance while curls process, cover them up with a scarf.

Bobbi also defends "trodden-down loafers" because they're "so comfortable."

That may be, but wear them and you court trouble. For foot health—and corns and calluses can be terribly painful, Bobbi—young feet need proper support. Loose shoes with run-down heels don't provide it.

"Teens aren't perfect," writes Bobbi, "but couldn't you—or someone—say something nice about them once in a while?"

Poor Bobbi! She sounds so picked-upon.

The teen years are trying — no doubt about it. Every adult in sight seems bent on criticizing "the younger generation," but such comments aren't meant to be mean. Usually advice is offered because adults were kids once, too, and want to keep youngsters from making some of the mistakes they made way back then.

New Listings Tie-In with Dial Codes

All Local Area Exchange Numbers In Alphabet Order

With the introduction of dial telephone service in Circleville Sunday morning, and the addition of new telephone prefixes in Ashville, Laurelville and Williamsport, every telephone in these communitis will have a new type listing in the recently dstributed 1958 telephone directory, according to Harold W. Miller, Circleville district commercial manager for General Telephone.

The new Circleville telephone numbers will be prefixed by the word GRanite, the nation-wide inter-toll dial code assigned to the community. When calling a desired number after the change-over, dial GR, the first two letters of the code GRanite, then proceed dialing the numbers. All the Circleville numbers will have five digits, beginning with the numeral 4.

Customers in the Ashville, Laurelville, and Williamsport exchanges, where dial operation has previously been in service, have been assigned prefixes followed by a digit, and their previously established telephone number. A complete number change was not necessary to place Ashville, Laurelville and Williamsport on the national inter-toll network. Only the addition of the two-letter, one-digit prefixiwas required.

The prefix for Ashville will be YUkon 3, and Laurelville will be prefixed by DEwey 2. YUkon 6 will be the prefix for the Williamsport exchange area.

To assist all customers in placing their calls, each central office prefix and the corresponding area it serves is listed in box form on each page of the alphabetical section of the directory.

* * *

INSTRUCTIONAL pamphlets with a letter explaining the proper use of the dial and the placement of service calls have been delivered to each Circleville customer, Miller said.

He added that explanatory letters concerning the change to the two-letter, five-digit numbering system have been sent to customers in Ashville, Laurelville and Williamsport.

"The new directory has more names, expanded classifications in the Yellw Pages, and up-to-date information," said Miller.

Because of these changes in telephone numbers and other information, he emphasized the importance of consulting the new directory after the conversion.

The book has shed its light green exterior and has taken on a gay arrangement of color and illustration that rivals the slick cover magazines. With a background of robin-egg blue, the cover has four color illustrations picturing various types of telephone services.

The new directory cover is being used by General Telephone Sytem companies throughout the 30 states in which it provides service.

More than 6,800 directories have been distributed throughout the four local exchange areas, according to Miller. The easy-to-handle two column directory provides a new convenience — interlocked listings.

All listings for Circleville, Ashville, Laurelville and Williamsport customers are in one complete alphabetical section (except those of Hallsville, an exchange of the Colerain Telephone Company, which are listed alphabetically under their respective community, or separately by exchange.

"THE ADVANTAGE of this new-type directory," said Miller, "is in the time saved in looking for a number. If you know the name of the person you want to call, but don't know where he lives, you can easily find his telephone number without going through each exchange section," he added.

Miller had this suggestion about the replacement of your directory: "Leaf through your old directory. You may find something valuable in it. Folks have filed money, important letters, and notes as well as cherished addresses in telephone directories. While you are going through the old directory, you'll want to transfer the frequently called numbers you have written in the old book to the new book."

"All telephone users will be pleased with the new Yellow Pages this year," he continued. "The new classified section of the telephone directory has been expanded to give better identification to different types and classes of businesses."

Miller pointed out that the inside back cover has space provided for frequently called numbers. Information to simplify long distance calling is listed on Page 2, and on the inside front cover are rates to the more frequently called out-of-town points.

O'Neill Chided By CIO Aide On Labor Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. C. William O'Neill's stand in support of the proposed constitutional amendment to regulate labor contracts has brought a rejoiner from the secretary - treasurer of the AFL-CIO.

Elmer F. Cope in a prepared statement questioned whether O'Neill's intention to make a major campaign issue of issue No. 2 has the backing of his fellow Republicans. Cope's statement said:

"While the governor seemingly has decided to do the bidding of the small, special-interest group promoting issue 2, we do not believe the entire Republican party has capitulated. . . .

"Gov. O'Neill apparently has decided not to risk going to the electorate on his record of the last two years. . . the governor is fully aware that issue 2 is not an anti-corruption measure. He knows too that the issue is not one of freedom or liberty."

The proposed amendment which will appear on the November ballots reads:

"No employer or labor organization shall deny or abridge the right to work by requiring membership or non-membership in, or payment or non-payment of money to, a labor organization as a condition of employment or continued unemployment in this state."

Batavia Man Is Freed In Shooting of Wife

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP) — George Vannatter was freed from county jail Thursday after Sheriff Clyde Dericks said there is not sufficient evidence to hold him in the shooting death of his wife, Barbara, 29. Dericks declined to disclose the results of a lie detector test Wednesday. Vannatter, 30, said his wife was shot accidentally when he tried to pull a loaded shotgun away from their young son at their Pleasant Plain home.

New Listings Tie-In with Dial Codes

All Local Area Exchange Numbers In Alphabet Order

With the introduction of dial telephone service in Circleville Sunday morning, and the addition of new telephone prefixes in Ashville, Laurelville and Williamsport, every telephone in these communitis will have a new type listing in the recently dstributed 1958 telephone directory, according to Harold W. Miller, Circleville district commercial manager for General Telephone.

The new Circleville telephone numbers will be prefixed by the word GRanite, the nation-wide inter-toll dial code assigned to the community. When calling a desired number after the change-over, dial GR, the first two letters of the code GRanite, then proceed dialing the numbers. All the Circleville numbers will have five digits, beginning with the numeral 4.

Customers in the Ashville, Laurelville, and Williamsport exchanges, where dial operation has previously been in service, have been assigned prefixes followed by a digit, and their previously established telephone number. A complete number change was not necessary to place Ashville, Laurelville and Williamsport on the national inter-toll network. Only the addition of the two-letter, one-digit prefixiwas required.

The prefix for Ashville will be YUkon 3, and Laurelville will be prefixed by DEwey 2. YUkon 6 will be the prefix for the Williamsport exchange area.

To assist all customers in placing their calls, each central office prefix and the corresponding area it serves is listed in box form on each page of the alphabetical section of the directory.

* * *

INSTRUCTIONAL pamphlets with a letter explaining the proper use of the dial and the placement of service calls have been delivered to each Circleville customer, Miller said.

He added that explanatory letters concerning the change to the two-letter, five-digit numbering system have been sent to customers in Ashville, Laurelville and Williamsport.

"The new directory has more names, expanded classifications in the Yellw Pages, and up-to-date information," said Miller.

Because of these changes in telephone numbers and other information, he emphasized the importance of consulting the new directory after the conversion.

The book has shed its light green exterior and has taken on a gay arrangement of color and illustration that rivals the slick cover magazines. With a background of robin-egg blue, the cover has four color illustrations picturing various types of telephone services.

The new directory cover is being used by General Telephone Sytem companies throughout the 30 states in which it provides service.

More than 6,800 directories have been distributed throughout the four local exchange areas, according to Miller. The easy-to-handle two column directory provides a new convenience — interlocked listings.

All listings for Circleville, Ashville, Laurelville and Williamsport customers are in one complete alphabetical section (except those of Hallsville, an exchange of the Colerain Telephone Company, which are listed alphabetically under their respective community, or separately by exchange.

"THE ADVANTAGE of this new-type directory," said Miller, "is in the time saved in looking for a number. If you know the name of the person you want to call, but don't know where he lives, you can easily find his telephone number without going through each exchange section," he added.

Introducing the Gospel

LUKE WRITES TO BELIEVERS THAT THEY MAY KNOW WITH CERTAINTY OF CHRIST'S LIFE

Scripture—Luke 1:1-4; 3:1-14; Acts 1:1-5.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

ST. LUKE, a physician and the only Gentile writer of a New Testament book, was also the best educated, according to Peloubet's Notes by Dr. Wilbur M. Smith. He had not known Jesus personally, but, as he says in his introduction, he had been informed by "eyewitnesses, and ministers of the word."—Luke 1:2. St. Luke was also a great traveler.

"It seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write unto thee in order, most excellent Theophilus, that thou mightest know the certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been instructed."—Luke 1: 3, 4.

Thus our lessons turn from the Old Testament and its teachings of moral living to the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Luke tells of the evil world rulers of the time, then introduces us to John the Baptist, the "forerunner of Christ," to whom the word of God came while he was in the wilderness. John was the son of the priest Zacharias. We are not told when he entered the wilderness or how long he was there before he received God's message. However, according to the English clergyman, G. Campbell Morgan, he is thought to have entered this hot, blistering, arid land when he was 20 years old and remained there at least 10 years. Leaving the wilderness, he began to preach through all Jordan "the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. . . . And the people asked him, saying, What shall we do then? He answereth and saith unto them, He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath meat, let him do likewise."—Luke 3:3, 10, 11.

"Then came also publicans to be baptized, and said unto him, Master, what shall we do? And he said unto them, Exact no more than that which is appointed you. And the soldiers likewise demanded of him, saying, And what shall we do? And he said unto them, Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely; and be content with your wages."—Luke 3:12-14.

These words of John the Baptist remind us of previous lessons when the prophet of old wrote, "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"—Micah 6:8.

In today's world there is a battle being waged between the Gospel of Christ and the purely materialistic view of life. "How grateful we can always be that it (the Gospel) was written with such exceeding great care under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit," writes Dr. Wilbur M. Smith.

After Jesus' resurrection, "He shewed Himself alive after His passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God:

"And, being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith He, ye have heard of Me.

"For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence."—Acts 1:3-5.

This promise of Christ's was fulfilled, as we shall learn in other lessons.

What should a student put in the first paragraph of any composition he is writing? "Such a composition should tell in the first paragraph what the composition is about, and secondly, as St. Luke does, the certainty or truth of the subjects with which it deals," writes Dr. Wilbur M. Smith.

MEMORY VERSE

"When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth His Son."—Galatians 4:4.

TV Man Pens Novel on TV

'The Hot Half Hour' Written by Ad Seller

NEW YORK (AP) — Many a person in television says he'd like to write a novel about this brave new entertainment world if only he had the time. Now one of the most influential men in TV programming has taken the time and produced one.

He is Robert L. Foreman, and his novel, published by Criterion, is entitled "The Hot Half Hour." As a vice president of the large advertising agency of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Foreman reputedly breathes life and signs death warrants on more TV programs than practically anyone along Madison Avenue.

As the author of "The Hot Half Hour," Foreman is rather shy about his first novel. He obviously is not Tolstoy or Stendahl, but he has written entertainingly and with brevity about a business he knows thoroughly.

Although the book concerns a TV quiz show, it was finished long before the current probe of quiz shows. Foreman, who puts in about 60 hours a week at his agency job, began it last December and finished it April 3. He must have written hard on weekends.

"Only on one week-end when the weather was lousy," says Foreman. "I wrote the rest of it in long hand on yellow sheets of paper while riding commuter trains between New York and Westport, or flying around the country on planes, or sitting up in bed at home nights.

"I'm a fly fisherman and I like to hunt and I didn't want to mess up my weekends sitting in the house writing."

"I've always wanted to write a novel," he said, "and it began to look as if I never would. Then, last December, I sat down and wrote two chapters. No, I don't have the vaguest idea what started me. But I showed it to a lawyer friend of mine, a very smart guy, and he showed it to Criterion.

"They offered me a contract, but I wouldn't sign it because I was afraid I'd never get out of the plot I'd started and wouldn't be able to finish the book. But I went ahead, writing fast.

"I'm not a novelist. I'm an avocational writer. Writing 'The Hot Half Hour' as an avocation I found stimulated me at my vocation, my job at B.B.D. and O. If I'd taken a year to write it, the book would more likely have been worse than better."

Wrong Number

Women's Editor Says Coeds Of World All Know Fashions

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

From Brussels to Bombay and from Bangkok to Hong Kong college girls speak the same language, says Betsy Talbot Blackwell, New York magazine editor just back from a two-week trip around the world.

"At Sofia College in Bombay, at Chulalongkorn University in Bangkok and at the International Christian University in Tokyo the coeds knew all about the latest fashion trends from Paris, and were wildly interested in the question of the new skirt length," says Mrs. Blackwell. "Even in places where they wore native dress, they kept up to the minute on Western fashions. Their next interests appeared to be dates and careers, in that order. Just like Vassar or Skidmore."

The globe-trotting Mrs. Blackwell, editor in chief of Mademoiselle, started her recent breakneck excursion after attending the fall openings in Paris and speaking to representatives of 42 nations in the United States Pavilion at the Brussels World's Fair.

"In every country—Europe, India, the Orient—girls are crowding into the colleges and universities, dead set on careers," she said. "They are eager to get going in all the fields that American women have tackled, even though they face greater obstacles than our girls do.

"This new freedom for women all over the world has developed in most countries just since the war."

About 10 percent of employed women in U. S. are in domestic service.

Introducing the Gospel

LUKE WRITES TO BELIEVERS THAT THEY MAY KNOW WITH CERTAINTY OF CHRIST'S LIFE

Scripture—Luke 1:1-4; 3:1-14; Acts 1:1-5.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

ST. LUKE, a physician and the only Gentile writer of a New Testament book, was also the best educated, according to Peloubet's Notes by Dr. Wilbur M. Smith. He had not known Jesus personally, but, as he says in his introduction, he had been informed by "eyewitnesses, and ministers of the word."—Luke 1:2. St. Luke was also a great traveler.

"It seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write unto thee in order, most excellent Theophilus, that thou mightest know the certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been instructed."—Luke 1: 3, 4.

Thus our lessons turn from the Old Testament and its teachings of moral living to the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Luke tells of the evil world rulers of the time, then introduces us to John the Baptist, the "forerunner of Christ," to whom the word of God came while he was in the wilderness. John was the son of the priest Zacharias. We are not told when he entered the wilderness or how long he was there before he received God's message. However, according to the English clergyman, G. Campbell Morgan, he is thought to have entered this hot, blistering, arid land when he was 20 years old and remained there at least 10 years. Leaving the wilderness, he began to preach through all Jordan "the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. . . . And the people asked him, saying, What shall we do then? He answereth and saith unto them, He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath meat, let him do likewise."—Luke 3:3, 10, 11.

"Then came also publicans to be baptized, and said unto him, Master, what shall we do? And he said unto them, Exact no more than that which is appointed you. And the soldiers likewise demanded of him, saying, And what shall we do? And he said unto them, Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely; and be content with your wages."—Luke 3:12-14.

These words of John the Baptist remind us of previous lessons when the prophet of old wrote, "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"—Micah 6:8.

In today's world there is a battle being waged between the Gospel of Christ and the purely materialistic view of life. "How grateful we can always be that it (the Gospel) was written with such exceeding great care under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit," writes Dr. Wilbur M. Smith.

After Jesus' resurrection, "He shewed Himself alive after His passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God:

"And, being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith He, ye have heard of Me.

"For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence."—Acts 1:3-5.

This promise of Christ's was fulfilled, as we shall learn in other lessons.

What should a student put in the first paragraph of any composition he is writing? "Such a composition should tell in the first paragraph what the composition is about, and secondly, as St. Luke does, the certainty or truth of the subjects with which it deals," writes Dr. Wilbur M. Smith.

MEMORY VERSE

"When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth His Son."—Galatians 4:4.

TV Man Pens Novel on TV

'The Hot Half Hour' Written by Ad Seller

NEW YORK (AP) — Many a person in television says he'd like to write a novel about this brave new entertainment world if only he had the time. Now one of the most influential men in TV programming has taken the time and produced one.

He is Robert L. Foreman, and his novel, published by Criterion, is entitled "The Hot Half Hour." As a vice president of the large advertising agency of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Foreman reputedly breathes life and signs death warrants on more TV programs than practically anyone along Madison Avenue.

As the author of "The Hot Half Hour," Foreman is rather shy about his first novel. He obviously is not Tolstoy or Stendahl, but he has written entertainingly and with brevity about a business he knows thoroughly.

Although the book concerns a TV quiz show, it was finished long before the current probe of quiz shows. Foreman, who puts in about 60 hours a week at his agency job, began it last December and finished it April 3. He must have written hard on weekends.

"Only on one week-end when the weather was lousy," says Foreman. "I wrote the rest of it in long hand on yellow sheets of paper while riding commuter trains between New York and Westport, or flying around the country on planes, or sitting up in bed at home nights.

"I'm a fly fisherman and I like to hunt and I didn't want to mess up my weekends sitting in the house writing."

"I've always wanted to write a novel," he said, "and it began to look as if I never would. Then, last December, I sat down and wrote two chapters. No, I don't have the vaguest idea what started me. But I showed it to a lawyer friend of mine, a very smart guy, and he showed it to Criterion.

"They offered me a contract, but I wouldn't sign it because I was afraid I'd never get out of the plot I'd started and wouldn't be able to finish the book. But I went ahead, writing fast.

"I'm not a novelist. I'm an avocational writer. Writing 'The Hot Half Hour' as an avocation I found stimulated me at my vocation, my job at B.B.D. and O. If I'd taken a year to write it, the book would more likely have been worse than better."

Wrong Number

Women's Editor Says Coeds Of World All Know Fashions

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

From Brussels to Bombay and from Bangkok to Hong Kong college girls speak the same language, says Betsy Talbot Blackwell, New York magazine editor just back from a two-week trip around the world.

"At Sofia College in Bombay, at Chulalongkorn University in Bangkok and at the International Christian University in Tokyo the coeds knew all about the latest fashion trends from Paris, and were wildly interested in the question of the new skirt length," says Mrs. Blackwell. "Even in places where they wore native dress, they kept up to the minute on Western fashions. Their next interests appeared to be dates and careers, in that order. Just like Vassar or Skidmore."

The globe-trotting Mrs. Blackwell, editor in chief of Mademoiselle, started her recent breakneck excursion after attending the fall openings in Paris and speaking to representatives of 42 nations in the United States Pavilion at the Brussels World's Fair.

"In every country—Europe, India, the Orient—girls are crowding into the colleges and universities, dead set on careers," she said. "They are eager to get going in all the fields that American women have tackled, even though they face greater obstacles than our girls do.

"This new freedom for women all over the world has developed in most countries just since the war."

Automatic Electric Co. Made Equipment for Local Phones

Automatic Electric Company of Northlake, Ill., the firm that produced the dial telephone equipment which was installed by General Telephone Company of Ohio in Circleville, is the second largest manufacturer of telephone equipment in the United States. Only Western Electric, the manufacturing affiliate of the Bell System, is larger.

The story of this company, now a subsidiary of the General Telephone System is the story of the automatic dial system of telephony . . . and many other important developments in the art and science of communication, many of which are reflected in the new equipment provided to improve and expand the telephone service for Circleville.

The story begins with how Almon Brown Strowger of Kansas City, one day back in 1889, had become provoked because of failure to receive a telephone call which he believed was due to a switchboard operator's error. And how he vowed that he would invent a system with the perfection of a machine—one in which mistakes, once the proper number had been indicated by the caller, would be beyond possibility.

The result was the first automatic telephone, installed at LaPorte, Ind., in 1893, in which push buttons were used to send impulses of current, causing a central office switch to select the called line, without the aid of an operator.

To avoid the possibility of error in counting the number of times a button had to be pushed, (for example, pushing the first button eight times and the second button three times in order to get telephone number 83), steps were taken to further mechanize this automatic system of making telephone connections.

IN 1895, the first finger-wheel dial was constructed with numbered finger holes on the outer edge of a circular plate that could be rotated. Dialing a digit on this device wound a spring. As the dial returned to its normal position, the mechanism caused a required number of circuit interruptions to take place which controlled the movement of the central office apparatus.

With the successful click of this first dial, a new era in communication was heralded. The original installation of this revolutionary calling device was made the following year, in 1896, at Albion, N. Y. The dials were large and cumbersome, in contrast with the present silent, quick acting dials. And some people referred to them as "pie pans." But they worked, they were a remarkable improvement over the push button system, and have long since become the standard of telephone communication throughout the world.

Strowger switches are the heart element of this new system being installed here. These devices are wired to serve as linefinders, selectors, and connectors, all controlled by your dial. The linefinder automatically "picks out" your line when you lift the handset or receiver of your telephone. The selector automatically selects or "picks out" an idle trunk line serving a group of lines, among which is the line of the party you are calling.

The connector "connects" your line with the line of the person you are calling, first testing that line for a busy condition, returning a busy tone to you if it is, or if the called line is not busy, completing the connection for you, and then shifting all the switches back to their original position when you and the person you are talking with hang up.

Once the Strowger switches had been perfected early in the 1900's, had been proved and accepted by the public, developments that extended the range, accuracy and economy of communication followed each other in short order.

One of the early, notable developments was flexible trunking, introduced by Automatic Electric in 1897. The idea was not new, but previous workers in the telephone field had not succeeded in producing anything suitable for effective use. The result was a system of group-choosing switches, the selectors mentioned above, with their several sets of contacts leading to connectors serving a group of lines. Each switch was so arranged that it would connect with the first idle trunk it found in rotating over these contacts.

By this scheme, the lines in each telephone exchange were divided into decimal and sub-decimal groups, and the desired telephone was reached simply by extending the connection, step-by-step to successively smaller groups — from ten thousands, to thousands, to hundreds, to tens, until finally the called telephone was reached.

Then, in 1905, came common battery supply, making possible a more compact type of telephone, and the automatic switchboard. The plunger lineswitch developed in 1906, was a simple mechanism that operated when the handset was lifted and connected to an idle selector.

• • •

AUTOMATIC busy tone; instantaneous ring cut off when a person called picked up his receiver; revertive ringing tone which enabled a calling party to know that his call was ringing at the other end of the line; selective ringing on party lines, where each telephone on a party line had its own number and only that particular number on the party line would ring when its number was dialed, followed soon after.

The two-wire dial, introduced by Automatic Electric engineers in 1910, resulted in simplification of central office switches, permitting redesign of the automatic dial into more compact form. Later, came the Call Indicator system, which provided the link between manual and automatic operation and the linefinder switch that "worked backward" to find a calling line and connect it through the selector, enabling 14 to 26 linefinders to serve a group of 200 lines, depending on traffic volume.

Automatic Electric toll or long distance dialing, also begn in 1910. This development extended automatic switching from local into regional networks, by which operators could dial automatic stations direct, or through one or more intermediate exchanges.

As the 1920s approached, an important event in the history of automatic telephony occurred. The Bell System, which has been watching these developments with growing interest, placed its first order for automatic dial equipment for its exchange at Norfolk, Va. In June of the following year, the Bell System publicly announced its intention of progressively adopting automatic switching for its exchanges. Today, both in the United States and abroad, Strowger-type equipment (such as the type of equipment being installed here) serves twice as many telephones as any other automatic system.

Thirty years ago, Automatic Electric introduced the "Director," long before today's network of toll circuits approached its present state of development. One thing the "Director" equipment does is automatically find an alternate route for your call when the more direct route is busy.

Director equipment performs this amazing task by receiving impulses from your telephone dial, storing these impulses momentarily, then automatically directing your call to a desired telephone central office by whatever route serves best.

The first popular handset telephone was introduced by the company as early as 1925; and in 1931, automatic key-sender toll boards were originated where an operator could set up a desired number of key-sender push buttons to activate automatic switches and relays.

In 1938, a nationwide subscriber toll dialing system was developed by Automatic Electric Company for the Belgian Telephone Administration, to be followed in 1944 by the first Strowger Automatic Toll Ticketing system in the United States. This unusual equipment provides subscriber dialing of "station-to-station" toll calls by automatically recording all charges. If a call is completed, this ticketing data is permanently recorded on a punched tape. Information on the tape can then be transferred on to regular toll tickets for bill processing by hand, or into punched cards for automatic bill processing. With the latter method, a long distance or other toll call can be completely automatic from the dialing of the call, to the issuing of the bill for it.

• • •

IN ADDITION to equipment for telephone companies and the Armed Forces, Automatic Electric Company is a large producer of intricate, electrical devices widely used in industrial control, automation of machines and processes, aircraft and airways control, and other specialized uses.

The company's principal plant and general offices are located at Northlake, Ill., near Chicago. Affiliate factories are located in Canada, South America, Mexico, New South Wales, Belgium and Italy.

Double Trouble

Terry Thomas, famed as the most loquacious teenager in her neighborhood, was burning up the wire one evening on the downstairs telephone — this much to the fuming irritation of her father.

Finally after listening to 15 minutes of nonsensical conversation between daughter and No. 1 girl friend, he broke in.

"Terry", he stormed, "I'd like to use the telephone. Why in heaven's name don't you use your private telephone, the one I got you for Christmas?"

Fixing her father with an incredulous and withering glance, Terty said, "Gee, Dad, don't be a square. Someone might call me on my telephone."

Inevitable Heat Bills Coming To Homeowners

They May Be Higher This Winter in Some Regions of Nation

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 46 million homeowners in the United States are facing up today to another economic fact of life — from now on the heating bills will start to mount.

Higher prices this year are likely in many areas as production costs and transportation charges rise. And the chances of price wars benefiting home owners grows slimmer as more factories reopen and eat into fuel stocks.

But the householders' struggle to get up the approximately five billion dollars to meet this winter's home heating bill is relatively mild compared with the battle among the various types of fuel striving to get a bigger share of the home owners' outlay.

Fuel oil dealers claim the biggest share now — almost half. But natural gas has cut in rapidly on this since the war and now heats around 13 million homes for more than 1½ billion dollars. Coal still holds a market of nearly three million homes and has new heating gadgets out to entice the home owner.

Still tiny, but coming up fast in the last five years, the electric heating system makers now claim nearly one-half million homes and boast they will make that an even million in 2½ more years. Heat pumps are used by 25,000 homes.

The battle between fuel oil and gas is pointed up by M. J. Rathbone, president of Jersey Standard Oil, who says, "Natural gas has grown from infant to giant proportions as a competitor" since the war and offers a real challenge to the 40,000 individual oil heating companies in the field.

The National Oilfuel Council says oil's fast postwar growth gives it nine million customers in centrally heated homes and seven million more in noncentrally heated.

The American Gas Assn. predicts that new gas lines will soon bring gas heated homes well above 13 million.

The Anthracite Information Bureau points out that in addition to the nearly three million homes there are thousands of schools, apartment houses, public buildings and industrial plants to use the 25 million tons expected to be shipped this year.

Electricity's big handicap in the race has been expense. But Commonwealth Edison of Chicago has just put into effect a new low rate for home heating and has a big drive under way. This heating form is most popular in exurbia and in country homes beyond the gas lines. But Commonwealth officials say they are also gaining customers in Chicago because of the reported ease and cheapness of installation.

But this season the big battle is still between fuel oil and natural gas, with price and convenience and availability among the talking points.

Phone Funnies

Kelly McNish, president of the Inter - Mountain Telephone Co., Bristol, Tenn., tells about the subscriber in Johnson City who wanted the welfare department. He asked the information operator for the number of "the farewell department." The information operator promptly had him connected with the local undertaker.

Youngstown City Bus Fare Slated for Hike

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — The city's bus fare will go from 20 to 25 cents Sunday but tokens will remain at five for a dollar. As a result of the latest fare increase, Mayor Frank X. Kryzan said he will form a citizens committee to study mass transit problems here, including possible municipal ownership.

2½ Million Motel Slated in Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP)—Plans have been announced to build a $2,500,000 downtown area motel containing 150 units, a garden park and a swimming pool that will convert to a skating rink in winter. The site is the old Malone Bible College. Construction is to start within 60 days with occupancy expected by Labor Day, 1959.

Automatic Electric Co. Made Equipment for Local Phones

Automatic Electric Company of Northlake, Ill., the firm that produced the dial telephone equipment which was installed by General Telephone Company of Ohio in Circleville, is the second largest manufacturer of telephone equipment in the United States. Only Western Electric, the manufacturing affiliate of the Bell System, is larger.

The story of this company, now a subsidiary of the General Telephone System is the story of the automatic dial system of telephony . . . and many other important developments in the art and science of communication, many of which are reflected in the new equipment provided to improve and expand the telephone service for Circleville.

The story begins with how Almon Brown Strowger of Kansas City, one day back in 1889, had become provoked because of failure to receive a telephone call which he believed was due to a switchboard operator's error. And how he vowed that he would invent a system with the perfection of a machine—one in which mistakes, once the proper number had been indicated by the caller, would be beyond possibility.

The result was the first automatic telephone, installed at LaPorte, Ind., in 1893, in which push buttons were used to send impulses of current, causing a central office switch to select the called line, without the aid of an operator.

To avoid the possibility of error in counting the number of times a button had to be pushed, (for example, pushing the first button eight times and the second button three times in order to get telephone number 83), steps were taken to further mechanize this automatic system of making telephone connections.

* * *

IN 1895, the first finger-wheel dial was constructed with numbered finger holes on the outer edge of a circular plate that could be rotated. Dialing a digit on this device wound a spring. As the dial returned to its normal position, the mechanism caused a required number of circuit interruptions to take place which controlled the movement of the central office apparatus.

With the successful click of this first dial, a new era in communication was heralded. The original installation of this revolutionary calling device was made the following year, in 1896, at Albion, N. Y. The dials were large and cumbersome, in contrast with the present silent, quick acting dials. And some people referred to them as "pie pans." But they worked, they were a remarkable improvement over the push button system, and have long since become the standard of telephone communication throughout the world.

Strowger switches are the heart element of this new system being installed here. These devices are wired to serve as linefinders, selectors, and connectors, all controlled by your dial. The linefinder automatically "picks out" your line when you lift the handset or receiver of your telephone. The selector automatically selects or "picks out" an idle trunk line serving a group of lines, among which is the line of the party you are calling.

The connector "connects" your line with the line of the person you are calling, first testing that line for a busy condition, returning a busy tone to you if it is, or if the called line is not busy, completing the connection for you, and then shifting all the switches back to their original position when you and the person you are talking with hang up.

Once the Strowger switches had been perfected early in the 1900's, had been proved and accepted by the public, developments that extended the range, accuracy and economy of communication followed each other in short order.

One of the early, notable developments was flexible trunking, introduced by Automatic Electric in 1897. The idea was not new, but previous workers in the telephone field had not succeeded in producing anything suitable for effective use. The result was a system of group-choosing switches, the selectors mentioned above, with their several sets of contacts leading to connectors serving a group of lines. Each switch was so arranged that it would connect with the first idle trunk it found in rotating over these contacts.

By this scheme, the lines in each telephone exchange were divided into decimal and sub-decimal groups, and the desired telephone was reached simply by extending the connection, step-by-step to successively smaller groups — from ten thousands, to thousands, to hundreds, to tens, until finally the called telephone was reached.

Then, in 1905, came common battery supply, making possible a more compact type of telephone, and the automatic switchboard. The plunger lineswitch developed in 1906, was a simple mechanism that operated when the handset was lifted and connected to an idle selector.

* * *

AUTOMATIC busy tone; instantaneous ring cut off when a person called picked up his receiver; revertive ringing tone which enabled a calling party to know that his call was ringing at the other end of the line; selective ringing on party lines, where each telephone on a party line had its own number and only that particular number on the party line would ring when its number was dialed, followed soon after.

The two-wire dial, introduced by Automatic Electric engineers in 1910, resulted in simplification of central office switches, permitting redesign of the automatic dial into more compact form. Later, came the Call Indicator system, which provided the link between manual and automatic operation and the linefinder switch that "worked backward" to find a calling line and connect it through the selector, enabling 14 to 26 linefinders to serve a group of 200 lines, depending on traffic volume.

Automatic Electric toll or long distance dialing, also begn in 1910. This development extended automatic switching from local into regional networks, by which operators could dial automatic stations direct, or through one or more intermediate exchanges.

As the 1920s approached, an important event in the history of automatic telephony occurred. The Bell System, which has been watching these developments with growing interest, placed its first order for automatic dial equipment for its exchange at Norfolk, Va. In June of the following year, the Bell System publicly announced its intention of progressively adopting automatic switching for its exchanges. Today, both in the United States and abroad, Strowger-type equipment (such as the type of equipment being installed here) serves twice as many telephones as any other automatic system.

Thirty years ago, Automatic Electric introduced the "Director," long before today's network of toll circuits approached its present state of development. One thing the "Director" equipment does is automatically find an alternate route for your call when the more direct route is busy.

Director equipment performs this amazing task by receiving impulses from your telephone dial, storing these impulses momentarily, then automatically directing your call to a desired telephone central office by whatever route serves best.

The first popular handset telephone was introduced by the company as early as 1925; and in 1931, automatic key-sender toll boards were originated where an operator could set up a desired number of key-sender push buttons to activate automatic switches and relays.

In 1938, a nationwide subscriber toll dialing system was developed by Automatic Electric Company for the Belgian Telephone Administration, to be followed in 1944 by the first Strowger Automatic Toll Ticketing system in the United States. This unusual equipment provides subscriber dialing of "station-to-station" toll calls by automatically recording all charges. If a call is completed, this ticketing data is permanently recorded on a punched tape. Information on the tape can then be transferred on to regular toll tickets for bill processing by hand, or into punched cards for automatic bill processing. With the latter method, a long distance or other toll call can be completely automatic from the dialing of the call, to the issuing of the bill for it.

IN ADDITION to equipment for telephone companies and the Armed Forces, Automatic Electric Company is a large producer of intricate, electrical devices widely used in industrial control, automation of machines and processes, aircraft and airways control, and other specialized uses.

The company's principal plant and general offices are located at Northlake, Ill., near Chicago. Affiliate factories are located in Canada, South America, Mexico, New South Wales, Belgium and Italy.

Double Trouble

Terry Thomas, famed as the most loquacious teenager in her neighborhood, was burning up the wire one evening on the downstairs telephone — this much to the fuming irritation of her father.

Finally after listening to 15 minutes of nonsensical conversation between daughter and No. 1 girl friend, he broke in.

"Terry", he stormed, "I'd like to use the telephone. Why in heaven's name don't you use your private telephone, the one I got you for Christmas?"

Fixing her father with an incredulous and withering glance, Terty said, "Gee, Dad, don't be a square. Someone might call me on my telephone."

Inevitable Heat Bills Coming To Homeowners

They May Be Higher This Winter in Some Regions of Nation

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 46 million homeowners in the United States are facing up today to another economic fact of life — from now on the heating bills will start to mount.

Higher prices this year are likely in many areas as production costs and transportation charges rise. And the chances of price wars benefiting home owners grows slimmer as more factories reopen and eat into fuel stocks.

But the householders' struggle to get up the approximately five billion dollars to meet this winter's home heating bill is relatively mild compared with the battle among the various types of fuel striving to get a bigger share of the home owners' outlay.

Fuel oil dealers claim the biggest share now — almost half. But natural gas has cut in rapidly on this since the war and now heats around 13 million homes for more than 1½ billion dollars. Coal still holds a market of nearly three million homes and has new heating gadgets out to entice the home owner.

Still tiny, but coming up fast in the last five years, the electric heating system makers now claim nearly one-half million homes and boast they will make that an even million in 2½ more years. Heat pumps are used by 25,000 homes.

The battle between fuel oil and gas is pointed up by M. J. Rathbone, president of Jersey Standard Oil, who says, "Natural gas has grown from infant to giant proportions as a competitor" since the war and offers a real challenge to the 40,000 individual oil heating companies in the field.

The National Oilfuel Council says oil's fast postwar growth gives it nine million customers in centrally heated homes and seven million more in noncentrally heated.

The American Gas Assn. predicts that new gas lines will soon bring gas heated homes well above 13 million.

The Anthracite Information Bureau points out that in addition to the nearly three million homes there are thousands of schools, apartment houses, public buildings and industrial plants to use the 25 million tons expected to be shipped this year.

Electricity's big handicap in the race has been expense. But Commonwealth Edison of Chicago has just put into effect a new low rate for home heating and has a big drive under way. This heating form is most popular in exurbia and in country homes beyond the gas lines. But Commonwealth officials say they are also gaining customers in Chicago because of the reported ease and cheapness of installation.

But this season the big battle is still between fuel oil and natural gas, with price and convenience and availability among the talking points.

Discard Old Directories On Sunday

All new telephone numbers become effective in Circleville at 6:30 a. m. Sunday with the change-over to dial.

"That means on Sunday, you should discard your old directory and begin using the new directory you received in the mail last week," Harold W. Miller, Circleville district commercial manager for General Telephone Company of Ohio, advises.

All Circleville numbers begin with the prefix GR for GRanite and have five numerical digits. The first numeral of all the Circleville numbers is 4. Miller said that the Fire and Police numbers also are effected by the change. The new number for reporting a fire is GRanite 4-2144 while the police number is GRanite 4-2380.

In all emergency calls, it is important to stay on the line until you are sure that someone understands the address where help is needed.

* * *

For Long Distance, dial "0."

To report a telephone out-of-order, dial "114" and you are connected with Repair Service.

To obtain assistance in securing a desired connection, dial "0" and ask for Assistance.

The number of the telephone business office in Circleville is GRanite 4-3171.

Miller explained the operation of coin telephones. For local calls, lift the receiver of the pay station, deposit your coin, wait for the dial tone, then dial your number. If the called party does not answer, or if the line is busy, your coin will be refunded after you hang up the receiver.

On long distance calls, lift the receiver of the pay station, deposit your coin, then after hearing the dial tone, dial "0." When the operator responds, she will refund the coin and accept your long distance call. Do not deposit the money until the operator tells you to do so.

3 Vermont Escapees Jailed in Elyria

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP) — Three men who escaped from the Rutland, Vt., County Jail took up quarters in the city jail here today. They were captured just west of the city limits after smashing their stolen automobile into a utility pole Thursday. Held for Vermont authorities were Willard Elmer Moody, 27, of Rutland; Benjamin Edward Davis, 19, of Pittsford, Vt., and Arthur Glendon Mason, 26, of East Dorset, Vt. Officers said the car had been stolen in Seneca Falls, N. Y.

Joseph G. Lindsay, editor of Long Lines, employe publication of AT&T's Long Lines Department, in a recent issue observed that owners of Siamese cats claim that they are almost human. He wen. on to say:

"Jenny, a feline friend of ours, is a case in point. Jenny, it seems, objects to the ringing of the telephone bell, especially when she is alone in the house. Either she realizes the call is not for her or else the sound grates upon her aristocratic nerves.

"At any rate, she has learned to take action. When the bell rings, Jenny leaps upon the telephone stand and with a deft movement of her paw removes the receiver.

"On telling this story, a telephone friend of ours asked a pertinent question. 'Does Jenny allow the phone to ring the recommended 10 times?'"

Tougher Laws On Criminals Said Needed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The best way to fight organized crime is through tough conspiracy laws, says Michael V. DiSalle.

The Democratic nominee for governor told a campaign audience here Thursday night that too often "local enforcement officials are forced to move against front men, petty offenders, without being able to reach the powerful individuals who pull the strings and who are in effect the real profiteers from commercialized and syndicated crime."

To get at the behind-the-scenes operators of big-time crime, DiSalle recommended enactment of laws that would carry punishments of from 5 to 20 years in prison for any persons who conspire to violate state laws against gambling, narcotics, prostitution, blackmail, extortion or arson.

"Conspiracy has become a most effective, if not the only, method of reaching and punishing many forms of complex criminal organizations," DiSalle said.

At a press conference preceding the evening speech, DiSalle reported his claim that the state actually is operating "in the red" because the treasury surplus is less now than it was when his Republican opponent, Gov. C. William O'Neill took office.

DiSalle said O'Neill has managed to conceal the drop in state funds through some fancy bookkeeping.

Miami University Enrollment Is Record

The university said there are 6,078 students enrolled, an increase of 3.5 per cent over last year. The total is approximately 1,000 greater than five years ago.

Conventional High Explosives Used in Most A-Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) Government officials disclosed Thursday that most atomic weapons contain conventional high explosives in varying amounts "up to many hundreds of pounds." It was the first figure revealed on the quantity of such explosives.

These high explosives comprise the major hazard associated with accidents involving atomic weapons, the Atomic Energy Commission and Defense Department said.

"Even though nuclear weapons are so designed as to prevent a nuclear yield in the event of accidental detonation, there is still a probable hazard commensurate with conventional weapons and materials. The two components of a nuclear weapon that constitute the most probable hazard in the case of an accident are (1) the high explosives and (2) the plutonium," they said in a statement.

Plutonium is a potentially poisonous radioactive material which might become dispersed during an accident. It would be a hazard if inhaled.

The agencies offered these instructions to anyone approaching an accident in which it is believed an atomic weapon is involved:

1. Attempt to save lives where possible; otherwise, keep away from accident area.

2. Notify the fire and police departments and in addition, the nearest military installation headquarters or AEC office.

3. Clear the area of all nonessential personnel out to 1500 feet or more.

4. Refrain from touching, removing or examining any items in the vicinity of an explosion.

Her Tolley's Off, Too

Overcaution doesn't always pay, as one TV telephone quiz show contestant will tell you.

She was telephoned beforehand to make sure that she would be home at the time of the telecast.

As the show went on, repeated attempts were made to reach her number, but the only reply was a busy signal.

After the show, the irate contestant called the TV station to complain that she had waited the full program time and was never called. "I even took my receiver off the hook to be sure my line wasn't tied up."

Ohio Farmer Says.
"d-CON STOPPED RATS FROM EATING ME OUT OF HOUSE AND HOME!"

Read What Lowell Geringer, Of Wauseon, Ohio, Has To Say About d-CON:

"Rats were a real problem with me I had to get rid of them and so I turned to d-CON I'd been using another rat-killer, but d-CON sure did the job d-CON gets results it really kills rats Let me tell you d-CON stopped rats from eating me out of house and home!"

It's a fact—in the great corn and wheat belts of America, where farmers really know how to get rid of rats, d-CON outsells all other rat and mouse killers combined!

Farmers know that d-CON is the quick, sure, easy way to rid their property of destructive, disease-bearing rats. For rats hungrily eat d-CON's exclusive LX 3-2-1 formula, never suspect it's bait, never get bait-shy, devour it without guessing that every bite puts another nail in their coffins. d-CON actually makes rats commit suicide.

d-CON is THERMO-SEALED—always reaches you "factory fresh." Economical, too. One package of d-CON makes several bait stations.

Remember, d-CON, used as directed, is safe to use around small children, pets, poultry and livestock, yet is guaranteed to keep your property rat and mouse free forever!

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The best way to fight organized crime is through tough conspiracy laws, says Michael V. DiSalle.

The Democratic nominee for governor told a campaign audience here Thursday night that too often "local enforcement officials are forced to move against front men, petty offenders, without being able to reach the powerful individuals who pull the strings and who are in effect the real profiteers from commercialized and syndicated crime."

To get at the behind-the-scenes operators of big-time crime, DiSalle recommended enactment of laws that would carry punishments of from 5 to 20 years in prison for any persons who conspire to violate state laws against gambling, narcotics, prostitution, blackmail, extortion or arson.

"Conspiracy has become a most effective, if not the only, method of reaching and punishing many forms of complex criminal organizations," DiSalle said.

At a press conference preceding the evening speech, DiSalle reported his claim that the state actually is operating "in the red" because the treasury surplus is less now than it was when his Republican opponent, Gov. C. William O'Neill took office.

DiSalle said O'Neill has managed to conceal the drop in state funds through some fancy bookkeeping.

Miami University Enrollment Is Record

The university said there are 6,078 students enrolled, an increase of 3.5 per cent over last year. The total is approximately 1,000 greater than five years ago.

Conventional High Explosives Used in Most A-Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) Government officials disclosed Thursday that most atomic weapons contain conventional high explosives in varying amounts "up to many hundreds of pounds." It was the first figure revealed on the quantity of such explosives.

These high explosives comprise the major hazard associated with accidents involving atomic weapons, the Atomic Energy Commission and Defense Department said.

"Even though nuclear weapons are so designed as to prevent a nuclear yield in the event of accidental detonation, there is still a probable hazard commensurate with conventional weapons and materials. The two components of a nuclear weapon that constitute the most probable hazard in the case of an accident are (1) the high explosives and (2) the plutonium," they said in a statement.

Plutonium is a potentially poisonous radioactive material which might become dispersed during an accident. It would be a hazard if inhaled.

The agencies offered these instructions to anyone approaching an accident in which it is believed an atomic weapon is involved:

1. Attempt to save lives where possible; otherwise, keep away from accident area.

2. Notify the fire and police departments and in addition, the nearest military installation headquarters or AEC office.

3. Clear the area of all nonessential personnel out to 1500 feet or more.

4. Refrain from touching, removing or examining any items in the vicinity of an explosion.

Her Tolley's Off, Too

Overcaution doesn't always pay, as one TV telephone quiz show contestant will tell you.

She was telephoned beforehand to make sure that she would be home at the time of the telecast.

As the show went on, repeated attempts were made to reach her number, but the only reply was a busy signal.

After the show, the irate contestant called the TV station to complain that she had waited the full program time and was never called. "I even took my receiver off the hook to be sure my line wasn't tied up."

Ohio Farmer Says.

Read What Lowell Geringer, Of Wauseon, Ohio, Has To Say About d-CON:

"Rats were a real problem with me I had to get rid of them and so I turned to d-CON I'd been using another rat-killer, but d-CON sure did the job d-CON gets results it really kills rats Let me tell you d-CON stopped rats from eating me out of house and home!"

Farmers know that d-CON is the quick, sure, easy way to rid their property of destructive, disease-bearing rats. For rats hungrily eat d-CON's exclusive LX 3-2-1 formula, never suspect it's bait, never get bait-shy, devour it without guessing that every bite puts another nail in their coffins. d-CON actually makes rats commit suicide.

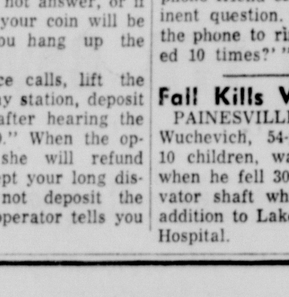

d-CON is THERMO-SEALED—always reaches you "factory fresh." Economical, too. One package of d-CON makes several bait stations.

Remember, d-CON, used as directed, is safe to use around small children, pets, poultry and livestock, yet is guaranteed to keep your property rat and mouse free forever!

Lost Temper Brings Dial Phone

He had just learned that a customer had tried to telephone him, only to be told by a Central operator that the line was busy. But his line had not been busy! He was sure of it—yet, with a sense of futility, he realized that he could not prove it.

He had lost some business, the damage was done and all the protests in the world could not recapture that customer's call. It had happened before, and whether it was a result of honest errors on the part of Central operators or a competitor's scheme, Strowger decided he had enough.

IN A FEW SHORT years Alexander Graham Bell's invention had caught on well and more and more city dwellers had come to depend on it for rapid communication. Businessmen such as Strowger, by this year of 1888, ahd also come to depend on the telephone as an important part of their enterprises.

But there was a vital weakness, Strowger thought, in this system of wires, bells and batteries that made the telephone possible. The weakness was the human, in the form of the "Hello Girl" at Central, who sat in the center of this giant system and manually connected telephone lines together every time a call was placed. Everything had to go through her.

One day while sitting at his desk a sudden thought struck him. Why couldn't a metal "finger" be made to move by electrical force from one terminal point to another, both vertically and horizontally, acting as a switchboard contact between two telephone lines? If the finger could respond from impulses sent by a calling party, it could, in effect, "count" the number of contacts much as an operator makes her count to find a desired telephone number.

HE RUMMAGED around until he found a round cardboard collar box and laid it on his desk. Then he gathered up some straight pins and began sticking them around the box in 10 neat rows, 10 pins to a row.

When he was finished, the points of 100 pins protruded slightly around the inside circumference of the box. To Strowger, each pin point represented an individual telephone and the entire assembly became a circular switchboard.

Now he imagined a shaft protruding through the center of the metal box with a metal finger attached, which could move either up or down on the shaft as well as horizontally along any given row. In other words, the metal finger represented the operator's arm in seeking out the desired number from 100 terminals.

With the help of an electrician, he arranged some magnets and other electrical equipment into a simple device which incorporated his shaft and metal finger principle. Then he tried out his experiment.

By transmitting a series of electrical impulses, he could direct the finger to move up the rows of contacts one row for each pulse. He could also make the finger move horizontally along any row, a step at a time. Therefore, if he wanted terminal number 75 in his little switchboard, he would transmit feven pulses over one circuit, moving the fingers to the seventh row. Then he could transmit five pulses over a second circuit, which would move the finger to the fifth terminal on that row. If a telephone were connected to that terminal he would be able to complete a connection without any immediate assistance from an operator. Strowger knew he had found the answer.

The little businessman-turned-inventor worked on his idea for several months, refining it into a workable model. Then on March 12, 1889, he filed his first patent on the device and two years later the patent was granted.

This and this alone, Strowger was convinced, accounted for the irritating delays, the costly errors and the ever-present threat of "listening in" that telephone subscribers were forced to endure.

The little white-haired man narrowed his gaze on the wall telephone. A machine could do the job better. Machines, if conceived properly, don't make mistakes. What a boon it would be, he savored, if one could place a call to another telephone without going through an operator!

He recounted what he knew of telephone operation. He wasn't an engineer, but he knew that a manual switchboard servicing 100 subscribers had 10 rows of terminals, each row serving 10 individual lines. If a call were placed for telephone number 75, the operator moved her plug up to the seventh row, then inserted it into the fifth terminal of that row.

He also knew that marvelous things had been accomplished through the control of electricity and the peculiar abilities of the electromagnet. Now, if this telephone switchboard operation could be directed automatically by electrical force, if an electro-mechanical device could seek out the desired line according to the number of pulses sent to it by the calling party...

For days Strowger pondered the problem in his Kansas City, Missouri, undertaking parlor. He was not a technical man, but he had a good liberal education including a career as a school teacher before entering business. More important than an engineering degree, at this critical point of his life, was his inquisitive layman's mind, which enabled him to plot a simple, straightforward path into a complex wilderness.

But, like so many inventors before him, he found his problems were not over. Nobody was really impressed by his odd little "thingamajig" and other businessmen were highly skeptical that his device would really work. It took an enterprising salesman from Chicago, one Joseph Harris, to take the automatic switch out of

• • •

HARRIS persuaded Strowger to come to Chicago where they arranged to have several model switches built by a novelty company, using Strowger's drawings They borrowed three telephones and set up an experimental system with which to demonstrate the revolutionary product. With this much to go on, the Strowger Automatic Telephone Company was founded in 1891.

The young company had the usual number of hardships and crises but gradually the true value of Strowger's invention began to attract the support of both financial and technical men.

A year later, the automatic system was given its first public trial at La Porte, Indiana, and met with instant success. Subscribers were delighted with the innovation; newspapers cheerily caught the mood of the day with headlines reading "Goodbye to the Hello Girl!" It was only the forerunner to a major revolution in the telephone industry.

Improvements on the original came rapidly, largely from the experienced telephone men who had joined the Strowger company because of their faith in the automatic switch. In 1901, the company was reorganized into the Automatic Electric Company, which vigorously carried on the pattern of development set by its predecessor.

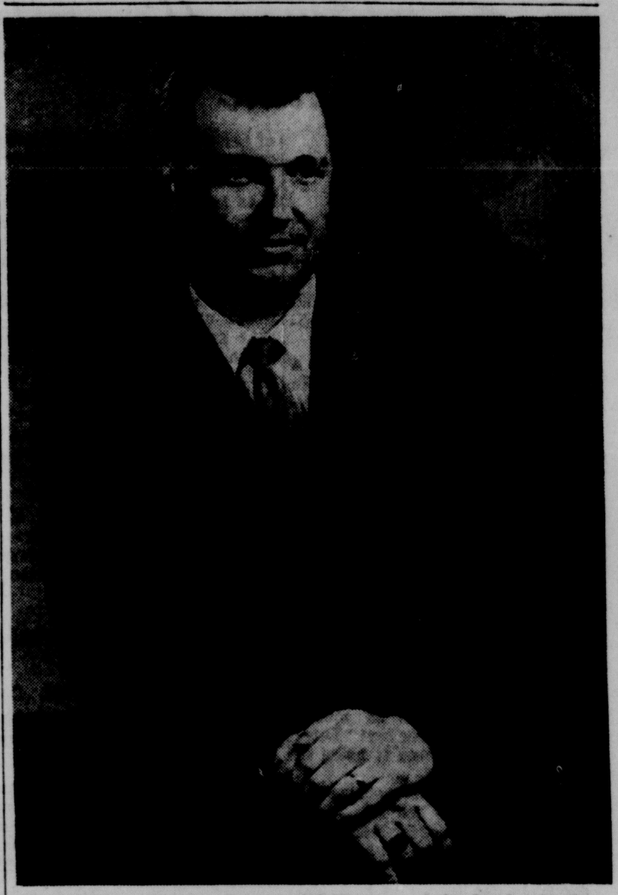

Strowger's invention signalled a new era in the telephone industry, providing inspiration for a flood of automatic service features which has continued to this day. The dial was developed to replace the push button method of calling; the lighter, desk-type telephone made its appearance when the source of power was removed from the individual telephone and placed in the central office.

Engineers introduced automatic intermittent ringing; automatic busy tone; instantaneous ring cutoff when the person called picked up his telephone receiver; and revertive ring tone which enabled a calling party to hear the ringing of the telephone at the other end of the line.

Another major advance was the development of selective ringing on party lines, where each telephone on a party line had its own number and only that particular telephone would ring when its number was called.

Today, over 75 per cent of the nation's telephones are dial operated, many of which use the basic principle developed by Strowger in 1889.

All this is but a logical development of Strowger's original desire to make the telephone as automatic as possible, reducing human interference to a minimum. Born in a mood of resentment, his creation became the second greatest landmark in telephone history and marked the start of modern telephony.

Too Many Late Shows

He arrived at the house and put the little girl and her younger sister and brother at ease by waking up the snoozing baby sitter, their father.

Snow Job

Two telephone men who had worked at different locations on the DEW line were conversing:

"It was so cold where we were," said the first, "that the flame on a candle froze, and we couldn't blow it out."

"That's nothing," jibed the second, "where we were the words came out of our mouths in pieces of ice, and we had to fry them to see what we had said."

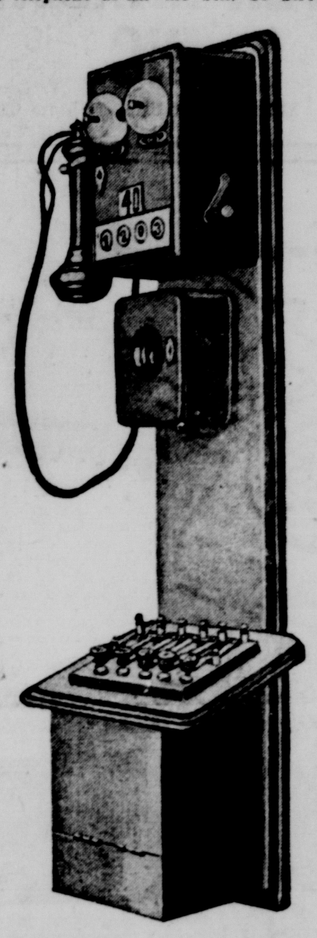

Terrific Loth

When a reporter on a Midwestern paper telephoned in a story about a farmer's high loss of 2,025 cows in a barn fire, an alert copy reader thought the figure pretty high and called the farmer to check on it.

So the smart newsman thanked him and changed the story to read two sows and 25 cows.

FIRST AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE — The comparatively massive instrument pictured above was the first automatic telephone, developed by Almon Brown Strowger. Push buttons were used on this 1892 telephone to send impulses of current, causing the switch in the telephone office to select the called line. To call number 89 for instance, the user pushed the first button eight times and the second button nine times.

ORIGINAL AUTOMATIC SWITCH — Ancestor of all automatic telephone switches was this original 1890 pre-patent switch invented by A. B. Strowger in response to his conviction that a way could be found to route telephone calls automatically. When the switch received push button impulses from a telephone, a metal finger on a central shaft rotated until it found the line of the party being called.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 45, married 20 years and have five children. I've been a wage earner most of my married life, as it gives me a sense of security and enables me to help my mother financially.

I am the eldest daughter of a large family, reared in poverty, in constant dread of disposses notices, disconnected utilities, bill collectors at the door (whom I was instructed to tell: "Mother isn't home"). I always felt deeply sorry for her and detested dad, who was mostly sleeping when he was not deserting us. He was harsh and cruel and rarely worked; and we leaned on welfare care.

The urgent problem is that my daughter Babs, 10, returned from mother's a few days ago in a distraught state. I found her huddled in the living room, sobbing desperately, and when questioned she cried: "Gramma has no money and I feel so sorry for her!" Later she asked if Gramma is going to die.

I was furious with mother and went at once to see her, and lashed out at her for burdening one of my children with her troubles. Almost immediately I was sorry, as she looked so hurt and stricken. My husband refers to her as a leech.

Is she wielding an unhealthy influence on my children?

C.C.

DEAR C.C.: Your husband is right about your mother, it seems. She was always a "mom"; which is to say, a leechlike character, who rests the full weight of her needs on other folks; while also invading their emotional privacy, to bleed them for pity, solace, etc.

Evidently she has begun on Babs for fresh supply of ingenuous wholehearted solicitude, such as you had put at her disposal in your childhood, but which has long since run pretty thin, I surmise, in the course of doing your duty as you've seen it.

I think that's why you were so furious, why you lashed out at her so fiercely— because it maddened you, temporarily, to realize (more intuitively than rationally) that she's willing to victimize Babs as she victimized you, in the service of her weak insatiable selfishness. And without concern for damage to the child.

As for Gramma's influence on your children, she can't really "poison" them except through you —by keeping you confused, torn by feelings of muffled fury and guilt. If you get clear about the whole picture, and feel sure of your ground, when rightly annoyed and outspoken, you automatically antidote her attempts to make your children martyrs to her morbidity. For ecucation in that respect, you should talk things over with a family relations consultant—say, on the staff of your local Family Service agency.

M.H.

Martha Taft Dies in Home At Age of 68

Her son, state Rep. Robert Taft Jr., said death was apparently heart failure. Mrs. Taft, who always shared her husbands campaign baftles, had been confined to a wheelchair since suffering a stroke in 1950. Her death, however, was unexpected.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow with burial beside her husband in an Indian Hill cemetery.

Martha Taft was a constant source of support. She made speeches and the speeches made friends.

In 1938, when Taft tried for the U. S. Senate for the first time, she startled old-line politicans by stumping Ohio for him, making speeches and arrangements in 85 of the 88 counties. One Cleveland newspaper headlined his victory "Bob and Martha Win."

She worked just as hard again in 1944 and in his unsuccessful tries for the presidential nomination. Her illness curtailed her activities, but in his last attempt—in 1952—she conducted a one-woman letter writing campaign for him.

The team of Bob and Martha didn't quite reach the White House, but that's where they met She was the daughter of the U. S Solicitor general; he was the son of President William Howard Taft. They were married in 1914.

Besides Robert Jr., Mrs. Taft is survived by three other sons, William Howard, former ambassador to Ireland and now a State Department adviser; Lloyd, former executive vice president of the Cincinnati Times-Star—a family enterprise—before it was sold this summer, and Horace, an assistant professor of physics at Yale. There are 14 grandchildren.

Girls in New Guinea in the South Pacific r ally are enthusiastic about "beauty marks." They rouge their whole faces—forehead, chin and all.

The committee ha l a $438.79 deficit after all expenses of last year's decorations and the Electric Co. said it wanted to he lpthe project.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 45, married 20 years and have five children. I've been a wage earner most of my married life, as it gives me a sense of security and enables me to help my mother financially.

I am the eldest daughter of a large family, reared in poverty, in constant dread of disposses notices, disconnected utilities, bill collectors at the door (whom I was instructed to tell: "Mother isn't home"). I always felt deeply sorry for her and detested dad, who was mostly sleeping when he was not deserting us. He was harsh and cruel and rarely worked; and we leaned on welfare care.

The urgent problem is that my daughter Babs, 10, returned from mother's a few days ago in a distraught state. I found her huddled in the living room, sobbing desperately, and when questioned she cried: "Gramma has no money and I feel so sorry for her!" Later she asked if Gramma is going to die.

I was furious with mother and went at once to see her, and lashed out at her for burdening one of my children with her troubles. Almost immediately I was sorry, as she looked so hurt and stricken. My husband refers to her as a leech.

Is she wielding an unhealthy influence on my children?

C.C.

DEAR C.C.: Your husband is right about your mother, it seems. She was always a "mom"; which is to say, a leechlike character, who rests the full weight of her needs on other folks; while also invading their emotional privacy, to bleed them for pity, solace, etc.

Evidently she has begun on Babs for fresh supply of ingenuous wholehearted solicitude, such as you had put at her disposal in your childhood, but which has long since run pretty thin, I surmise, in the course of doing your duty as you've seen it.

I think that's why you were so furious, why you lashed out at her so fiercely— because it maddened you, temporarily, to realize (more intuitively than rationally) that she's willing to victimize Babs as she victimized you, in the service of her weak insatiable selfishness. And without concern for damage to the child.

As for Gramma's influence on your children, she can't really "poison" them except through you—by keeping you confused, torn by feelings of muffled fury and guilt. If you get clear about the whole picture, and feel sure of your ground, when rightly annoyed and outspoken, you automatically antidote her attempts to make your children martyrs to her morbidity. For ecucation in that respect, you should talk things over with a family relations consultant—say, on the staff of your local Family Service agency.

M.H.

Martha Taft Dies in Home At Age of 68

CINCINNATI (AP)—Mrs. Martha Bowers Taft, widow of Sen. Robert A. Taft, died Thursday at her home in suburban Indian Hill. She was 68.

Her son, state Rep. Robert Taft Jr., said death was apparently heart failure. Mrs. Taft, who always shared her husbands campaign baftles, had been confined to a wheelchair since suffering a stroke in 1950. Her death, however, was unexpected.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow with burial beside her husband in an Indian Hill cemetery.

Martha Taft was a constant source of support. She made speeches and the speeches made friends.

In 1938, when Taft tried for the U. S. Senate for the first time, she startled old-line politicans by stumping Ohio for him, making speeches and arrangements in 85 of the 88 counties. One Cleveland newspaper headlined his victory "Bob and Martha Win."

She worked just as hard again in 1944 and in his unsuccessful tries for the presidential nomination. Her illness curtailed her activities, but in his last attempt—in 1952—she conducted a one-woman letter writing campaign for him.

The team of Bob and Martha didn't quite reach the White House, but that's where they met She was the daughter of the U. S Solicitor general; he was the son of President William Howard Taft. They were married in 1914.

Besides Robert Jr., Mrs. Taft is survived by three other sons, William Howard, former ambassador to Ireland and now a State Department adviser; Lloyd, former executive vice president of the Cincinnati Times-Star—a family enterprise—before it was sold this summer, and Horace, an assistant professor of physics at Yale. There are 14 grandchildren.

Milwaukee Sure Next 2 Victories Won't Come Easy

NEW YORK (AP)—Two up and two to go. But there is not a Milwaukee Brave who thinks it will be easy.

Two down and four to go. But there is not a New York Yankee who thinks the situation is desperate.

That was the World Series picture today as the Braves and Yankees took a 24-hour breather after Lew Burdette's 13-5 conquest of the American League champions that gave Milwaukee a 2-0 edge in the series.

Despite their crushing defeat, matching the worst beating they had ever absorbed in series competition, the Yankees were confident they could turn the tables on the Braves, winning at least two out of the three in Yankee Stadium.

Manager Fred Haney said his starting pitcher will be either Bob Rush or Juan Pizarro.

The guess here is that the third game pitcher will be Rush. The big right-hander gets the call over the young left-hander because of his greater experience. Rush had a 10-6 record during the season. Larsen was 9-6. The Yankees are 7-5 favorites.

"Sure, we're not in what I would call a rosy position," he said, "but this thing is not over by a long shot. Why, only two years ago, we lost the first two to Brooklyn. I seem to remember that we won it at the end, didn't we? There's no law that says we can't do it again. You just never know about those things until they happen. Then you know.

"Somebody ought to tell those guys not to get too cocky just because they beat us a couple of times. This club of mine has a way of coming back. I know we haven't looked so good but we might get to 'em pretty quick."

Stengel better not bank on the Braves becoming too cocky. Haney spoke for all of his players when he said: "It's far from over. All I'm looking forward to is Saturday's ball game. We'll play them one at a time. All right, so we're two in front. That's two they can't win. But you can't become chesty. They can come back and pin our ears back. You just got to play 'em one at a time."

Warren Spahn, who probably will pitch the fourth game Sunday, said he figured it will take six games for the Braves to repeat last year's triumph.

"These Yankees are tough," he said.

He had a three-hitter and had retired 15 men in a row going into the last inning. Four straight hits, including home runs by Hank Bauer and Mickey Mantle, put him in real trouble for the only time since the first inning when the Yanks scored first and had the bases loaded before the first double play of the series pulled him out of it.

Lew left the field as the first pitcher in 21 years to win four straight from the same team in World Series competition. Lefty Gomez, a Yankee great, did it back in 1936-37 against the New York Giants but he had relief help in one game, while Burdette's have all been complete jobs.

Burdette himself homered in the last half of the first to cap a record seven-run inning by the Braves that all but wrapped it up. He was the fifth pitcher to homer in a World Series and the first since Bucky Walters did it for Cincinnati against Detroit in 1940.

Elston Howard, playing left field for the Yanks, crashed into the fence in a vain effort to pull down Burdette's poke. Examination showed he probably will be sidelined Saturday.

Howard's replacement, Norm Siebern, got one of the seven hits off Burdette, who walked one and struck out five. Bauer had two hits and Mantle two. Mantle has now hit 11 homers in series play, second only to Babe Ruth's 15.

College Grid Defense Face Trying Tests

Oklahoma, Army Using New Wide-Open Style Of Football Offense

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oklahoma and Army, who unveiled new, wide-open offenses that staggered opponents a week ago will be at it again Saturday.

Before all this comes about, though, Jim Tatum's winless (0-2) North Carolina Tar Heels meet Southern California tonight in Los Angeles. USC is 1-1 and a six-point favorite.

Oklahoma, No. 1 team in the country, plays defense-minded Oregon. The Webfeet had a week to work on Coach Bud Wilkinson's new offensive concepts, and enter the game ranked No. 7 in defense.

Movies of the "bazooka formation" at West Point have been distributed to all Army's opponents, except Navy, and Penn State is the first to see if it can make Coach Red Blaik sorry for his generosity. The fifth-ranked Cadets have that "lonesome end" (plays 18 yards from his tackle) that was greatly responsible for the 45-8 drubbing of South Carolina a week ago.

There will be all sorts of variations in the Cotton Bowl when Notre Dame (No. 7) meshes its running and passing attacks against Southern Methodist (No. 18) and quarterback Don Meredith's great passing arm. The Irish have fullback Nick Pietrosante back for full-time service.

Fireworks aplenty are planned at Michigan State when the fourth-ranked Spartans use their multiple offense against neighbor and bitter rival Michigan in the Big Ten's top game.

Television viewers get a bit of variety too, when Washington State's ace passer Bob Newman goes against California's Joe Kapp a split-T quarterback who is rated a better runner than passer. The game is scheduled for 3:45 p.m., EST, over NBC-TV or as soon as the World Series is finished.

Third-ranked Ohio State's Buckeyes meet upset-minded Washington, a 24-21 victor over Minnesota last week. Second-ranked Auburn has more to lose than gain with its game against tiny Chattanooga as does sixth-ranked Mississippi against Trinity of Texas.

Iowa (No. 8) ushers the Air Force Academy into competition with the Big Ten, Wisconsin (No. 9) tests Marquette's one-game winning streak after it lost 19 in a row, and 10th-ranked Clemson plays Maryland in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

U.S. To Depend Upon Youth in Davis Cup Play

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The United States today looks to youth, including a pair of teenagers and a Peruvian, to recapture the Davis Cup which Australia's tennis stars have held three years.

Veering away from policies of the past, the new group heading the Davis Cup campaign brought some innovations and a declaration from non-playing Capt. Perry T. Jones that "we have an excellent chance to win."

Named to the five - member squad were Earl Buchholz Jr. of St. Louis, Chris Crawford of Piedmont, Calif., Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, Hamilton Richardson of Washington, D.C., and Alex Olmedo of Peru, a student at the University of South California.

Anthony Slated To Test McBride

The televised fight (NBC 9 p.m. EST) is scheduled for 10 rounds.

He won 34 of his 40 bouts before tangling with McBride, 29, from Trenton, N. J. McBride has fought most of the ranking heavyweights including champion Floyd Patterson. He has 21 victories in 35 bouts.

Ohio-Owned Trotter Chalks World Record in Futurity

Senator Frost, owned by Wayne W. Galvin of Wilmington and Ray V. Foster of Lima, was clocked at 1:59.1 in the first dash of the $53,330 Kentucky Futurity.

But the second and third heats were taken by Emily's Pride, owned jointly by the Castleton and Walnut Hills Farms of Lexington.

The three-year-old filly's time for the second heat was 1:59.2, also a record.

The Galvin-Foster entry was clocked then at 1:59.2.

In winning Thursday, Emily's Pride set a three-dash combined record time of 5:58.2, lowering the old record of 6:02.

Coming back the final mile, Emily's Pride was pulling away at the finish head of Mr. Saunders and Gang Awa as Senator Frost faded in the last quarter and finished seventh.

Senator Frost paid $8.60, $3.60 and $3.60 for his winning mile. Emily's Pride paid $6.20, $2.40 and $2.10 in the second and $3.20, $2.60 and $2.60 in the last mile.

Top-Rank Warren To Tangle with Mansfield Outfit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Warren's top ranked Black Panthers, held to a 16-16 tie by Cleveland Cathedral Latin last week, are up against another tough foe this weekend. They face Mansfield's Tigers, winners of three in a row and ranked sixth in The Associated Press poll.

Warren (1) vs Mansfield (6), Massillon (2) vs Steubenville, Cleveland Cathedral Latin (3) vs Cleveland Glenville, Alliance (4) vs Barberton (11), Cleveland Benedictine, idle; Springfield (7) vs Middletown, Elyria (8), vs Cuyahoga Falls, Toledo Libbey (9) vs Toledo Scott, Youngstown East (10) vs Youngstown Ursuline.

Kicks, Punts Get Closer Attention

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The kick, and its first cousin, the punt, often a dull bit of routine to some football fans, get more than their share of attention these days around the college football practice fields.

For the fan who likes to see the running-passing phase of the game, a man who has to kick a ball is looked on as somewhat of a kill joy.

Not so to Ohio State's Woody Hayes, or Harvard's John Vovicsin.

Hayes, whose Buckeyes play Washington this week, feels his team must match the Huskies kicking game if they are to win. Washington currently is No. 6 in the country in punting.

Jim Owens' team, in upsetting Minnesota 24-21 last week, punted six times for a 44.3 yard average. In two games it has 10 punts for 42.3 average.

Ohio State managed four for 34 yards against Southern Methodist last week. Woody also has his boys looking to the field goal, a weapon he used successfully in winning the Rose Bowl 17-14 this year, and one these same Huskies used to beat Minnesota.

Yovicsin saw his Harvard team stunned with a 6-3 loss to unheralded Buffalo on a blocked kick. His three punters are getting plenty of time working under pressure from linemen this week in prepping for the Cornell game Saturday.

Notre Dame, which must face SMU Saturday, practiced kickoff and punt returns. The Mustangs rank No. 5 in punting, with 2-for-42.5 yards against Ohio State.

A pair of Southwest Conference teams, Texas A&M and Arkansas, teams, Texas A&M and Arkansas, drilled in kicking, with both looking for initial victories Saturday after two consecutive losses.

Just who will do the punting for Penn is the problem today. The Quakers face Dartmouth Saturday with two halfbacks who took care of the chore last week against Penn State on the shelf.

Tigers Will Battle Hillsboro Crew in Homecoming Test

Probably the biggest handicap to the Tigers will be the limited role of guard Asa Elsea who has been plagued with flu this week. Although he was back in school yesterday, the ace linebacker and kicking specialist seems destined to sit out most of the game tonight.

Coach Tom Bennett said he may use Elsea on kickoffs, placements and punts if necessary. His actual playing duty will depend on how he feels today, the coach added.

Otherwise, the CHS 11 appears to be at its best strength since pre-season practice. Tackle Harry Strawser, fullback Larry Hannahs and halfback Walt Arledge, all suffering early season leg injuries, are back in the lineup and seem to be ready for full duty.

• • •

RAY PHIFER was running well at left half yesterday as was Tom Greeno at quarterback. Former left half Roger Wolfe was moved to guard about two weeks ago and seems to have found a starting berth at this position.

Fiery Ernie Lindsey was working at Elsea's guard spot, giving all indications that he can adequately handle the job. Available for duty at either guard spot is Dave Huffer who can take over at a moment's notice.

Big Bill Perkins was Strawser's tackle mate and Leo Moats and Jim Woods were at the ends. Woods, along with utility man Dave Smith, also can be counted on for replacement duty at quarterback if needed. The offensive center slot was in the capable hands of Brent Bell.

The Tigers' two defensive workhorses, Marion Morrison and Harold Arledge will be working at middle guard and linebacker respectively. Both have displayed some rugged performances so far this season.

The Indians have size, including several lettermen who could give the locals trouble. Backs Dave Mallory, Dick Blankenship and Roger Mullenix pace the Hillsboro offense which includes a commendable passing attack.

• • •

LAST week the Indians were downed, 38-8, by Washington C. H. Their intentions tonight will be to get back on the winning side of the ledger.

In the WCH game, the Indians fumbled five times, losing two of them. They also were penalized 114 yards for infractions.

Miss Linda Emerine will wield the magic wand as homecoming queen tonight. The likeable blonde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Emerine, Dunkel Road, also serves as head cheerleader for CHS.

Miss Emerine's attendants are Miss Phyllis McCoard and Elizabeth Tomlinson. The queen and her court were nominated by the football squad and elected by the entire CHS student body.

Another special attraction at tonight's halftime activities will be a performance by Hillsboro's Marching Band. The Indian bandsmen will utilize the entire period except that time needed for the queen crowning ceremony.

Steeler Pilot Eyes Browns' Dynamite

"Explosive all the way," Parker adds. "They can break a game wide open with their running. If we can contain these three, we could pull off a victory Sunday."

The undefeated Browns and the once-beaten Steelers meet here Sunday in the second week of play of the National Football League.

"Mitchell, fast as lightning, quick.

"Brown, big, but you can catch him.

Milwaukee Sure Next 2 Victories Won't Come Easy

NEW YORK (AP)—Two up and two to go. But there is not a Milwaukee Brave who thinks it will be easy.

Two down and four to go. But there is not a New York Yankee who thinks the situation is desperate.

That was the World Series picture today as the Braves and Yankees took a 24-hour breather after Lew Burdette's 13-5 conquest of the American League champions that gave Milwaukee a 2-0 edge in the series.

Despite their crushing defeat, matching the worst beating they had ever absorbed in series competition, the Yankees were confident they could turn the tables on the Braves, winning at least two out of the three in Yankee Stadium.

Manager Fred Haney said his starting pitcher will be either Bob Rush or Juan Pizarro.

The guess here is that the third game pitcher will be Rush. The big right-hander gets the call over the young left-hander because of his greater experience. Rush had a 10-6 record during the season. Larsen was 9-6. The Yankees are 7-5 favorites.

The series odds, which now favor Milwaukee at 11-5, failed to dampen Stengel's faith.

"Sure, we're not in what I would call a rosy position," he said, "but this thing is not over by a long shot. Why, only two years ago, we lost the first two to Brooklyn. I seem to remember that we won it at the end, didn't we? There's no law that says we can't do it again. You just never know about those things until they happen. Then you know.

"Somebody ought to tell those guys not to get too cocky just because they beat us a couple of times. This club of mine has a way of coming back. I know we haven't looked so good but we might get to 'em pretty quick."

Stengel better not bank on the Braves becoming too cocky. Haney spoke for all of his players when he said: "It's far from over. All I'm looking forward to is Saturday's ball game. We'll play them one at a time. All right, so we're two in front. That's two they can't win. But you can't become chesty. They can come back and pin our ears back. You just got to play 'em one at a time."

Warren Spahn, who probably will pitch the fourth game Sunday, said he figured it will take six games for the Braves to repeat last year's triumph.

"These Yankees are tough," he said.

He had a three-hitter and had retired 15 men in a row going into the last inning. Four straight hits, including home runs by Hank Bauer and Mickey Mantle, put him in real trouble for the only time since the first inning when the Yanks scored first and had the bases loaded before the first double play of the series pulled him out of it.

But Burdette dug up a little something extra in the ninth and three straight putouts followed the four hits.

Lew left the field as the first pitcher in 21 years to win four straight from the same team in World Series competition. Lefty Gomez, a Yankee great, did it back in 1936-37 against the New York Giants but he had relief help in one game, while Burdette's have all been complete jobs.

Burdette himself homered in the last half of the first to cap a record seven-run inning by the Braves that all but wrapped it up. He was the fifth pitcher to homer in a World Series and the first since Bucky Walters did it for Cincinnati against Detroit in 1940.

Elston Howard, playing left field for the Yanks, crashed into the fence in a vain effort to pull down Burdette's poke. Examination showed he probably will be sidelined Saturday.

Howard's replacement, Norm Siebern, got one of the seven hits off Burdette, who walked one and struck out five. Bauer had two hits and Mantle two. Mantle has now hit 11 homers in series play, second only to Babe Ruth's 15.

College Grid Defense Face Trying Tests

Oklahoma, Army Using New Wide-Open Style Of Football Offense

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oklahoma and Army, who unveiled new, wide-open offenses that staggered opponents a week ago will be at it again Saturday.

Before all this comes about, though, Jim Tatum's winless (0-2) North Carolina Tar Heels meet Southern California tonight in Los Angeles. USC is 1-1 and a six-point favorite.

Oklahoma, No. 1 team in the country, plays defense-minded Oregon. The Webfeet had a week to work on Coach Bud Wilkinson's new offensive concepts, and enter the game ranked No. 7 in defense.

Movies of the "bazooka formation" at West Point have been distributed to all Army's opponents, except Navy, and Penn State is the first to see if it can make Coach Red Blaik sorry for his generosity. The fifth-ranked Cadets have that "lonesome end" (plays 18 yards from his tackle) that was greatly responsible for the 45-8 drubbing of South Carolina a week ago.

There will be all sorts of variations in the Cotton Bowl when Notre Dame (No. 7) meshes its running and passing attacks against Southern Methodist (No. 18) and quarterback Don Meredith's great passing arm. The Irish have fullback Nick Pietrosante back for full-time service.

Fireworks aplenty are planned at Michigan State when the fourth-ranked Spartans use their multiple offense against neighbor and bitter rival Michigan in the Big Ten's top game.

Television viewers get a bit of variety too, when Washington State's ace passer Bob Newman goes against California's Joe Kapp a split-T quarterback who is rated a better runner than passer. The game is scheduled for 3:45 p.m., EST, over NBC-TV or as soon as the World Series is finished.

Third-ranked Ohio State's Buckeyes meet upset-minded Washington, a 24-21 victor over Minnesota last week. Second-ranked Auburn has more to lose than gain with its game against tiny Chattanooga as does sixth-ranked Mississippi against Trinity of Texas.

Iowa (No. 8) ushers the Air Force Academy into competition with the Big Ten, Wisconsin (No. 9) tests Marquette's one-game winning streak after it lost 19 in a row, and 10th-ranked Clemson plays Maryland in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

U.S. To Depend Upon Youth in Davis Cup Play

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The United States today looks to youth, including a pair of teenagers and a Peruvian, to recapture the Davis Cup which Australia's tennis stars have held three years.

Veering away from policies of the past, the new group heading the Davis Cup campaign brought some innovations and a declaration from non-playing Capt. Perry T. Jones that "we have an excellent chance to win."

Named to the five - member squad were Earl Buchholz Jr. of St. Louis, Chris Crawford of Piedmont, Calif., Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, Hamilton Richardson of Washington, D.C., and Alex Olmedo of Peru, a student at the University of South California.

Anthony Slated To Test McBride

The televised fight (NBC 9 p.m. EST) is scheduled for 10 rounds.

He won 34 of his 40 bouts before tangling with McBride, 29, from Trenton, N. J. McBride has fought most of the ranking heavyweights including champion Floyd Patterson. He has 21 victories in 35 bouts.

Ohio-Owned Trotter Chalks World Record in Futurity

Senator Frost, owned by Wayne W. Galvin of Wilmington and Ray V. Foster of Lima, was clocked at 1:59.1 in the first dash of the $53,330 Kentucky Futurity.

But the second and third heats were taken by Emily's Pride, owned jointly by the Castleton and Walnut Hills Farms of Lexington.

The three-year-old filly's time for the second heat was 1:59.2, also a record.

Senator Frost's record time erased the 1:59¼ time set by Protector in winning the Futurity 27 years ago.

Senator Frost, driven by 30-year old Dick Buxton, last week smashed two marks at the Lexington Trots, including Greyhound's record for trotters set in 1935.

The Galvin-Foster entry was clocked then at 1:59.2.

In winning Thursday, Emily's Pride set a three-dash combined record time of 5:58.2, lowering the old record of 6:02.

Coming back the final mile, Emily's Pride was pulling away at the finish head of Mr. Saunders and Gang Awa as Senator Frost faded in the last quarter and finished seventh.

Senator Frost paid $8.60, $3.60 and $3.60 for his winning mile. Emily's Pride paid $6.20, $2.40 and $2.10 in the second and $3.20, $2.60 and $2.60 in the last mile.

Kicks, Punts Get Closer Attention

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The kick, and its first cousin, the punt, often a dull bit of routine to some football fans, get more than their share of attention these days around the college football practice fields.

For the fan who likes to see the running-passing phase of the game, a man who has to kick a ball is looked on as somewhat of a kill joy.

Not so to Ohio State's Woody Hayes, or Harvard's John Vovicsin.

Hayes, whose Buckeyes play Washington this week, feels his team must match the Huskies kicking game if they are to win Washington currently is No. 6 in the country in punting.

Jim Owens' team, in upsetting Minnesota 24-21 last week, punted six times for a 44.3 yard average. In two games it has 10 punts for 42.3 average.

Ohio State managed four for 34 yards against Southern Methodist last week. Woody also has his boys looking to the field goal, a weapon he used successfully in winning the Rose Bowl 17-14 this year, and one these same Huskies used to beat Minnesota.

Yovicsin saw his Harvard team stunned with a 6-3 loss to unheralded Buffalo on a blocked kick. His three punters are getting plenty of time working under pressure from linemen this week in prepping for the Cornell game Saturday.

Notre Dame, which must face SMU Saturday, practiced kickoff and punt returns. The Mustangs rank No. 5 in punting, with 2-for-42.5 yards against Ohio State.

A pair of Southwest Conference teams, Texas A&M and Arkansas, teams, Texas A&M and Arkansas, drilled in kicking, with both looking for initial victories Saturday after two consecutive losses.

Just who will do the punting for Penn is the problem today. The Quakers face Dartmouth Saturday with two halfbacks who took care of the chore last week against Penn State on the shelf.

Jack McTigue, Brown halfback who missed the Columbia opener because of a knee injury, tested it in a running and kicking drill and found no hitches.

Tigers Will Battle Hillsboro Crew in Homecoming Test

Circleville's grid Tigers hope to make tonight's homecoming a successful event by turning back the Indians of Hillsboro.

Probably the biggest handicap to the Tigers will be the limited role of guard Asa Elsea who has been plagued with flu this week. Although he was back in school yesterday, the ace linebacker and kicking specialist seems destined to sit out most of the game tonight.

Coach Tom Bennett said he may use Elsea on kickoffs, placements and punts if necessary. His actual playing duty will depend on how he feels today, the coach added.

Otherwise, the CHS 11 appears to be at its best strength since pre-season practice. Tackle Harry Strawser, fullback Larry Hannahs and halfback Walt Arledge, all suffering early season leg injuries, are back in the lineup and seem to be ready for full duty.

* * *

RAY PHIFER was running well at left half yesterday as was Tom Greeno at quarterback. Former left half Roger Wolfe was moved to guard about two weeks ago and seems to have found a starting berth at this position.

Fiery Ernie Lindsey was working at Elsea's guard spot, giving all indications that he can adequately handle the job. Available for duty at either guard spot is Dave Huffer who can take over at a moment's notice.

Big Bill Perkins was Strawser's tackle mate and Leo Moats and Jim Woods were at the ends. Woods, along with utility man Dave Smith, also can be counted on for replacement duty at quarterback if needed. The offensive center slot was in the capable hands of Brent Bell.

The Tigers' two defensive workhorses, Marion Morrison and Harold Arledge will be working at middle guard and linebacker respectively. Both have displayed some rugged performances so far this season.

Hillsboro rulls into town with a record of one win and two losses, but can be counted on to furnish some stiff competition for the locals.

The Indians have size, including several lettermen who could give the locals trouble. Backs Dave Mallory, Dick Blankenship and Roger Mullenix pace the Hillsboro offense which includes a commendable passing attack.

* * *

LAST week the Indians were downed, 38-8, by Washington C. H. Their intentions tonight will be to get back on the winning side of the ledger.

In the WCH game, the Indians fumbled five times, losing two of them. They also were penalized 114 yards for infractions.

Miss Linda Emerine will wield the magic wand as homecoming queen tonight. The likeable blonde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Emerine, Dunkel Road, also serves as head cheerleader for CHS.

Miss Emerine's attendants are Miss Phyllis McCoard and Elizabeth Tomlinson. The queen and her court were nominated by the football squad and elected by the entire CHS student body.

Another special attraction at tonight's halftime activities will be a performance by Hillsboro's Marching Band. The Indian bandsmen will utilize the entire period except that time needed for the queen crowning ceremony.

Steeler Pilot Eyes Browns' Dynamite

"Explosive all the way," Parker adds. "They can break a game wide open with their running. If we can contain these three, we could pull off a victory Sunday."

The undefeated Browns and the once-beaten Steelers meet here Sunday in the second week of play of the National Football League.

"Terrific runners," Parker calls the three, adding:

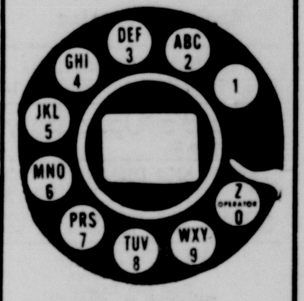

"Mitchell, fast as lightning, quick.

"Brown, big, but you can catch him.

"Bolden, an open-type runner who is hard to get a hold of."

REAL ESTATE

We the undersigned, will offer for sale at public auction, at the door of the Court House in Circleville, Pickaway County, Ohio, on

Thursday, October 9, 1958

At 2:00 o'clock P.M., the following real estate, to wit:

187.49 acres more or less, situated in Washington Twp. Pickaway County, Ohio and known as the Barnhart farm; located approximately 1 mile East of Circleville on Route No. 22. Very productive soil, all tillable except 10 acres of woods and creek. Has a frontage on Route No. 22 of approximatey 2100 feet; gas line runs along entire frontage. This farm being a short distance from corporation limits, offers a splendid opportunity for rural development; now improved with a 5 room brick house, barn and milk house.

Terms of sale: 10% of the purchase price to be paid immediately after sale, balance of the purchase price to be paid in full on delivery of deed within 30 days after day of sale.

Possession: The purchaser will have the privilege of entering said farm for the purpose of seeding and make any necessary improvements so long as such improvements do not interfere with the rights of the tenant; full possession March 1, 1959.

PUBLIC SALE
REAL ESTATE

We the undersigned, will offer for sale at public auction, at the door of the Court House in Circleville, Pickaway County, Ohio, on

Thursday, October 9, 1958

At 2:00 o'clock P.M., the following real estate, to wit:

187.49 acres more or less, situated in Washington Twp. Pickaway County, Ohio and known as the Barnhart farm; located approximately 1 mile East of Circleville on Route No. 22. Very productive soil, all tillable except 10 acres of woods and creek. Has a frontage on Route No. 22 of approximatey 2100 feet; gas line runs along entire frontage. This farm being a short distance from corporation limits, offers a splendid opportunity for rural development; now improved with a 5 room brick house, barn and milk house.

Terms of sale: 10% of the purchase price to be paid immediately after sale, balance of the purchase price to be paid in full on delivery of deed within 30 days after day of sale.

Possession: The purchaser will have the privilege of entering said farm for the purpose of seeding and make any necessary improvements so long as such improvements do not interfere with the rights of the tenant; full possession March 1, 1959.

Coppers Lead Stocks on Climb Upward

NEW YORK (AP) — Coppers were strong as the stock market continued a drive to record levels in active trading early this afternoon.

Gains of fractions to a point or more were scored by a wide variety of key stocks. A scattering of issues rose 2 or 3 points. Coppers and other nonferrous metals were favored in the wake of price boosts for copper, zinc and lead. Steels, motors, drugs, rails, electronics and airlines joined in the renewed advance. Oils were up despite price cuts.

Favorable business and economic news accompanied the rise. Rail freight carloadings were at a 1958 peak. September construction outlays were reported on a par with the August record.

Kennecott and Magma Copper were up about 3 points each. Anaconda and International Nickel rose more than a point apiece. Phelps Dodge and Alcoa advanced about a point while American Smelting and Aluminium Ltd. made fractional gains.

Polaroid added well over 2. Gains of more than a point were made by Gulf Oil and Pfizer while Lorillard gained 2. American Motors rose ¼ to 20¼.

U.S. Steel and Jones & Laughlin were about a point ahead. Republic Steel rose fractionally.

Small gains were posted by Chrysler and Ford. Up around a point were Union Carbide, Westinghouse Electric, American Can, Loew's, Merck and American Airlines. Texas Co., Royal Dutch, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Raytheon, Sperry Rand and Eastman Kodak gained fractions.

Secret Harvard Conference Linked to Dulles Statement

BOSTON, Mass. (AP)—A secret conference of Secretary of State Dulles with a group of Harvard faculty members last Saturday may have had something to do with a seeming change in U.S. policy regarding Quemoy, the Boston Globe said today.

On that day, Dulles came to Boston to address the Atlantic Treaty Assn. The prepared address he brought with him and handed out on arrival said our Formosa Strait policy was vital to Europe. Then he was whisked across the Charles River to Cambridge and met with some 30 Harvard faculty members.

The meeting was supposed to be secret but a story was written—although not printed — for the Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily. Since then the story has spread by word of mouth, the Globe said.

They wanted to know in substance what are we doing in Quemoy and "how do we get out of this mess."

Then on Monday Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter said in a speech the offshore islands "are not strategically defensible to the defense of Formosa."

About the same time civic leaders, including John J. McCloy, former U.S. high commissioner for Germany, were meeting in New York.

The story is that the conference was interrupted several times by telephone calls from Dulles and even President Eisenhower.

McCloy's New York office said he was out of town and not immediately reachable for comment.

At any rate, the Globe says, on Tuesday Dulles told a Washington news conference the United States favored reducing Chiang's forces on Quemoy and Matsu if the Communists ceased their firing. On Wednesday the President backed up Dulles saying a cease-fire would open the way for negotiations in good faith.

Election Board Sets Hearing Date

The Pickaway County Board of Elections will hold a hearing at 10 a. m. October 11 for the proposed change of two precinct polling places.

The election board proposes to change the polling place of Ward 4, precinct B, which is presently located in the Church of Christ in Christian Union basement, to the Church of Christ in Christian Union parsonage basement at 447 E. Ohio St.

Ward 4, precinct A's polling place is presently located at Himrod's Furniture Repair, on the corner of Pickaway and Union Sts. The proposed switch will place the polling booths in the Corwin Street elementary school.

The 4A change has been desired by the precinct polling booth worker. for several years. Any eligible voter in the area of these two precincts may contest the change at the above mentioned time.

Coppers Lead Stocks on Climb Upward

NEW YORK (AP) — Coppers were strong as the stock market continued a drive to record levels in active trading early this afternoon.

Gains of fractions to a point or more were scored by a wide variety of key stocks. A scattering of issues rose 2 or 3 points. Coppers and other nonferrous metals were favored in the wake of price boosts for copper, zinc and lead. Steels, motors, drugs, rails, electronics and airlines joined in the renewed advance. Oils were up despite price cuts.

Settlement of General Motors' labor dispute fortified the market. GM went ahead a point or so in brisk dealings.

Favorable business and economic news accompanied the rise. Rail freight carloadings were at a 1958 peak. September construction outlays were reported on a par with the August record.

Kennecott and Magma Copper were up about 3 points each. Anaconda and International Nickel rose more than a point apiece. Phelps Dodge and Alcoa advanced about a point while American Smelting and Aluminium Ltd. made fractional gains.

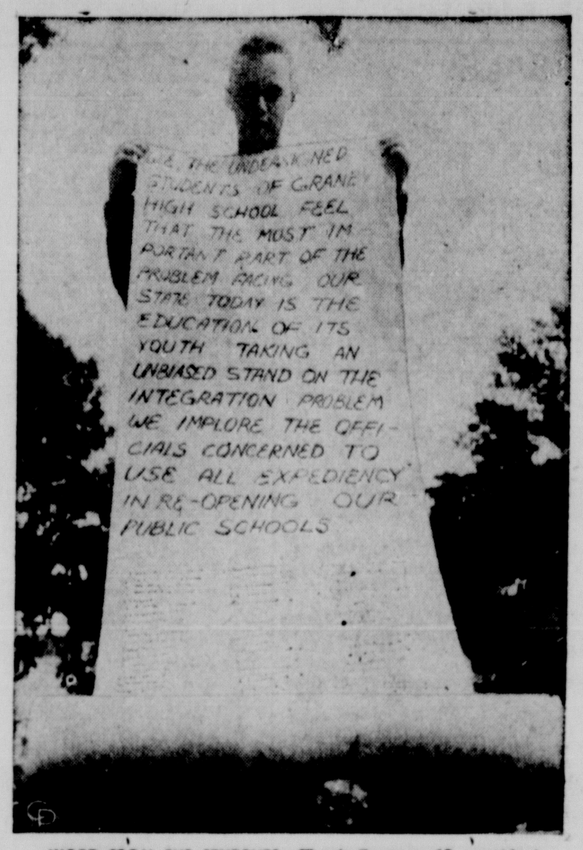

Rhodesian Selection Trust, the big African copper producer, was unchanged at 2½ on a block of 58,000 shares, then rose a fraction.

Polaroid added well over 2. Gains of more than a point were made by Gulf Oil and Pfizer while Lorillard gained 2. American Motors rose ¼ to 20¼.

Small gains were posted by Chrysler and Ford. Up around a point were Union Carbide, Westinghouse Electric, American Can, Loew's, Merck and American Airlines. Texas Co., Royal Dutch, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Raytheon, Sperry Rand and Eastman Kodak gained fractions.

Secret Harvard Conference Linked to Dulles Statement

BOSTON, Mass. (AP)—A secret conference of Secretary of State Dulles with a group of Harvard faculty members last Saturday may have had something to do with a seeming change in U.S. policy regarding Quemoy, the Boston Globe said today.

On that day, Dulles came to Boston to address the Atlantic Treaty Assn. The prepared address he brought with him and handed out on arrival said our Formosa Strait policy was vital to Europe. Then he was whisked across the Charles River to Cambridge and met with some 30 Harvard faculty members.

The meeting was supposed to be secret but a story was written—although not printed — for the Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily. Since then the story has spread by word of mouth, the Globe said.

The newspaper said these things took place:

After Dulles spoke for about 15 minutes, the educators questioned him for three-quarters of an hour. Their questions implied strong disagreement.

They wanted to know in substance what are we doing in Quemoy and "how do we get out of this mess."

Then on Monday Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter said in a speech the offshore islands "are not strategically defensible to the defense of Formosa."

About the same time civic leaders, including John J. McCloy, former U.S. high commissioner for Germany, were meeting in New York.

The story is that the conference was interrupted several times by telephone calls from Dulles and even President Eisenhower.

McCloy's New York office said he was out of town and not immediately reachable for comment.

At any rate, the Globe says, on Tuesday Dulles told a Washington news conference the United States favored reducing Chiang's forces on Quemoy and Matsu if the Communists ceased their firing. On Wednesday the President backed up Dulles saying a cease-fire would open the way for negotiations in good faith.

Election Board Sets Hearing Date

The Pickaway County Board of Elections will hold a hearing at 10 a. m. October 11 for the proposed change of two precinct polling places.

The election board proposes to change the polling place of Ward 4, precinct B, which is presently located in the Church of Christ in Christian Union basement, to the Church of Christ in Christian Union parsonage basement at 447 E. Ohio St.

Ward 4, precinct A's polling place is presently located at Himrod's Furniture Repair, on the corner of Pickaway and Union Sts. The proposed switch will place the polling booths in the Corwin Street elementary school.

The 4A change has been desired by the precinct polling booth worker for several years. Any eligible voter in the area of these two precincts may contest the change at the above mentioned time.
